

Johnson Due To Get Votes Of Sympathy

Wisconsin Primary Has Become Maze Rather Than Battleground

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — day that there certainly are people who would be ready to support him," he said.

Chief among the shadows: Lyndon B. Johnson, the President whose announcement that he will not run again turned Wisconsin and Democratic politics from a battleground into a maze.

Republicans and Democrats, even men in the McCarthy camp, said the President undoubtedly would get more votes in Wisconsin than he would have had he remained in the presidential race. Johnson's name remains on the ballot.

Minds Made Up

McCarthy said he thought most Wisconsin voters had their minds made up and wouldn't change them despite the President's announcement.

"What happened might make some minor changes in the results, but I don't think they'll be measurable," he said.

But the primary was the first test of voter sentiment toward a president who has decided to stand aside. Wisconsin politicians in both parties expected a sizeable vote of sympathy and compliment.

Should that Johnson vote be large, McCarthy said, he would have to "go on to Indiana and say this was not a real political test, I suppose."

In Madison, the state capital where the University of Wisconsin campus has seen several anti-war demonstrations, a municipal referendum faces voters on Vietnam issues.

Troop Withdrawal

The referendum question asks whether there should be "an immediate cease-fire and withdrawal of the United States troops from Vietnam, so that the Vietnamese people can determine their own destiny."

Indiana holds the beginning of the real Democratic contest. For there, on May 7, New York Sen. Robert F. Kennedy will run against McCarthy in a Democratic primary matching the two dissenters who have suddenly become the top contenders.

That rivalry led McCarthy to program an election-day campaign mission to Omaha, Neb. He and Kennedy will meet on May 14 in the Nebraska presidential primary.

McCarthy said he could not guess whether Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey would now join the battle for the Democratic nomination. "I would say to

First Troops Head Home From Europe

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — The withdrawal of 35,000 American soldiers and airmen from Europe accelerated today with the departure by plane of the 24th Infantry Division's 3rd Engineer Battalion.

A commercial jetliner took off from Munich with 214 soldiers, wives and children. Three other flights were scheduled today with a total of 327 passengers.

Their first stop in the United States was to be McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey, to unload men whose cars had been shipped in advance to Philadelphia. The rest were to continue on to Forbes Air Force Base in Kansas and then to Ft. Riley, Kan.

Two 24th Division brigades, totaling 10,000 servicemen and 12,000 members of their families, are being shifted to Ft. Riley under the redeployment plan announced last December. The plan is to save about $100 million annually in foreign exchange costs.

The withdrawal was ordered after West Germany informed the United States it could not meet the full foreign exchange offset costs of stationing about 225,000 American soldiers and 60,000 airmen in Germany.

Meets With President

Humphrey to Tell Plans 'Later on'

WASHINGTON (AP) Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, who has not said whether he will seek the presidency, met today with President Johnson for the first time since Johnson announced he does not want a second term.

Humphrey, who arrived here late Monday on a diplomatic mission to Mexico City, told a crowd of supporters meeting his plane he will say "later on" whether he will be a candidate. But in Philadelphia, Mayor James H. J. Tate told newsmen Monday a Humphrey aide indicated to him the vice president will run for president.

Humphrey joined Johnson at a White House breakfast attended by the Democratic congressional leadership.

Johnson also has on tap a meeting with Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, who already is contending for the Democratic nomination, with no date announced. Kennedy requested the meeting to discuss national unity following Johnson's startling announcement Sunday night that he won't seek or accept re-nomination.

Johnson told newsmen Monday he would grant Kennedy's request.

McCarthy Efforts

Johnson's announced exit prompted Sen. Eugene J. Mc-

Carthy, another Democratic contender, to make last-minute efforts to counter a potential sympathy vote for the President in today's Wisconsin primary.

Only the President and McCarthy are listed on the Democratic ballot there and private polls taken before Johnson's announcement showed McCarthy way ahead.

In a nationally broadcast speech on primary eve McCarthy said Johnson's decision not to run again "deserves, I think, the approval, the honor and the respect of every citizen of the United States."

Humphrey, who was on a diplomatic mission in Mexico when Johnson made his decision public, stepped from a plane into the chilly Washington air late Monday night and got a warm welcome from about 500 persons, many of them bearing placards urging him to run.

"I will meet with President Johnson tomorrow and I shall be talking to you later on," Humphrey told them.

Freeman Silent

Standing behind him as he read his statement was Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, a former three-term governor of Minnesota who was Humphrey's protege early in their careers.

Freeman made no comment about whether he would back a Humphrey bid. Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., who also was in the crowd, said he would support such a bid.

A Humphrey bid apparently would also attract support among Democratic leaders and labor chiefs.

An Associated Press poll showed that some Democratic national committeemen and governors would look toward Humphrey although a large percentage of them expressed hope Johnson would change his mind and a few mentioned a draft-Johnson attempt.

Humphrey's name came up repeatedly in a spot check of the Democratic party's labor wing in Washington.

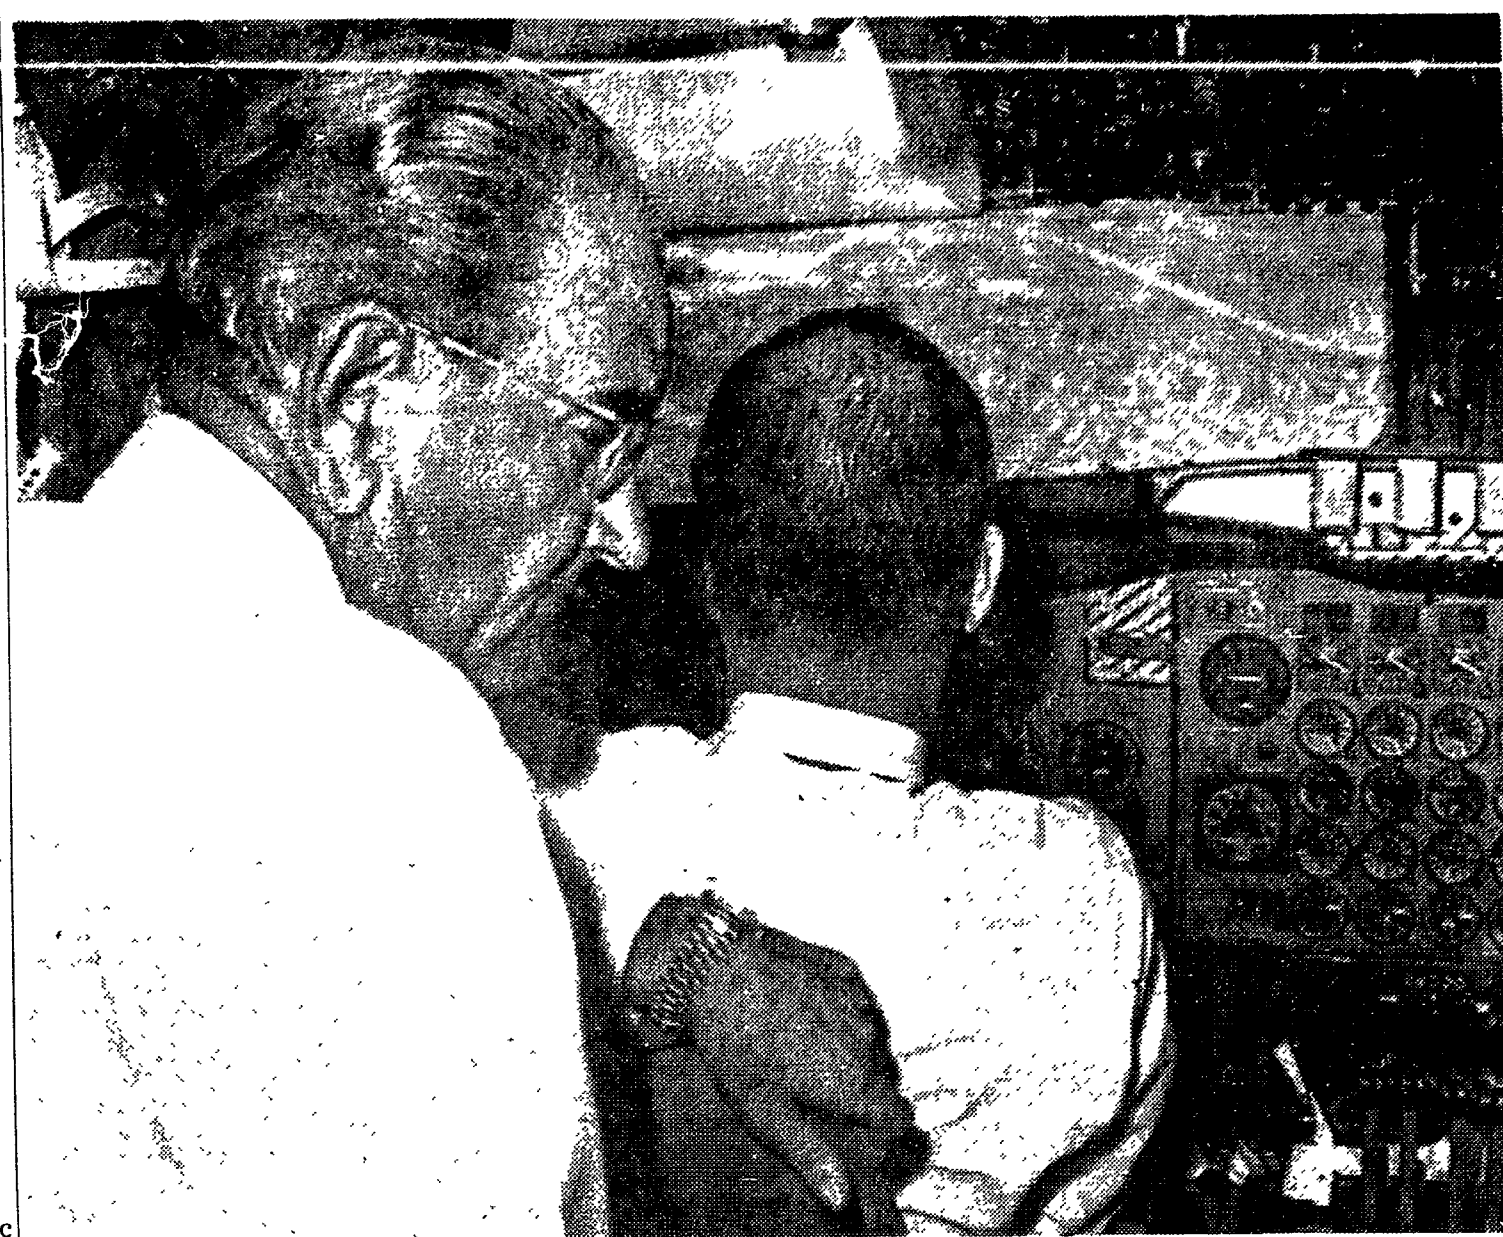

One union president—Thomas L. Gleason of the International Longshoremen's Association—said Humphrey was a working liberal "long before any of these guys with the long hair stood up."

Nixon said, "I think that if this bombing pause has been agreed to or initiated because of some assurances that the administration has that it's going to bring some progress, then it would be a very good step."

"We'll know, I would say, within two or three weeks whether this pause was based on that or whether it was simply unilateral desperate action," he said. "If it was the latter it was a mistake."

He declared that "unless this bombing pause does produce some real progress toward peace, the disillusionment in this country is going to be very, very strong and the reaction will be to do more on the military side."

President Finds Peace of Mind, Soul

LBJ Likes Life of 'Lame Duck'

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lyndon B. Johnson has served his first day as a "lame duck" President—and managed to make it look easy.

If Johnson entertained any private misgivings Monday about his "completely irrevocable" decision to shun another race for the country's highest office, they were totally camouflaged.

In fact, the Chief Executive looked and acted like a man who had just invented peace of mind, peace of soul, or both. He seemed relaxed, confident and happy.

Often labeled an impatient man, quick to anger when discomfited, he remained unruffled even when a mishap involving the White House press corps—a traditional adversary of all presidents—kept him an immobile prisoner in his own airplane for more than half an hour.

Little Love

Although it usually is assumed there is little brotherly love between Johnson and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York, who covets his job, even mention of Kennedy's name failed to draw sparks.

"Whenever it is convenient Johnson, when asked if he would honor the senator's request for an early face-to-face meeting, simply replied, "Surely."

When a reporter then inquired if the President had any particular meeting time in mind, Johnson appeared the soul of magnanimity and accommodation.

"Whenever it is convenient Johnson, when asked if he Observers have noted in the past that Johnson has seemed to find new zest for life—and greater equanimity—after resolving, to his satisfaction, major problems. That would seem to be the case now.

He has "crossed that bridge"—a phrase he repeatedly used to describe his possible 1968 candidacy—and he gives every

Thieu Says U.S. Pullout of Troops Would be 'Desertion'

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu said today his government could agree to a gradual withdrawal of U.S. troops beginning by the end of this year but he made clear he would hate to see them go.

In his first comments on President Johnson's de-escalation speech Sunday night Thieu told a news conference that only more troops can hasten the end of the war. He also said if the United States withdraws from Vietnam "they will be avoiding their responsibility and deserting the free world."

But when asked by what date he thought the United States could begin to withdraw Thieu replied: "If the United States requests a withdrawal of its troops we can agree to a gradual withdrawal beginning by the end of 1968. Of course we will never ask the United States to go home but if the U.S. government wants it, we can begin to relieve some American troops with our new effort to mobilization."

Thieu recently announced the South Vietnamese armed forces will do it now."

Like President Johnson in his announcement of the bombing curtailment, Thieu set no deadline for Hanoi's response. But the South Vietnamese leader said: "It is a matter of weeks, not a matter of months."

Thieu made these other points:

—His government will never agree to a coalition government with the Viet Cong. The Viet Cong can participate in peace negotiations, but only as part of the North Vietnamese delegation. Thieu and Ky have insisted on both points repeatedly.

—He does not think President Johnson's speech Sunday was the first step in a face-saving American withdrawal from Vietnam. "I have no suspicion of that because of the decisive stand of the United States concerning peace in all of South-east Asia," Thieu said.

—U.S. pressure could never force a coalition government including the Viet Cong on South Vietnam. "This is a Vietnamese war," Thieu said. "The American government and policies can change but the ideals and policies of the government of Vietnam will never change. We will not accept any policy that runs against the Vietnamese people."

—Differences between Thieu and Vice President Ky are over-emphasized. "We may differ on individual points, but we are working together for the highest interests of Vietnam," Thieu said. He appealed to the newsmen not to look "with a microscope for small differences which are sometimes imaginary between the vice president and myself."

Thieu added that he had asked Ky to take on the supervision of a project to organize civilians into armed self-defense units. As the president spoke, Ky sat at his right, grim-faced and with his eyes nearly closed.

Unconditional Bombing Halt Still Is Sought

Pentagon Fears Enemy Supplies Will Hurt U. S.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The North Vietnamese government appeared today to be getting ready to reject President Johnson's peace overture, but hope was expressed in at least two foreign capitals.

Among developments related to Johnson's announcement Sunday that he was calling an immediate halt to most bombings in North Vietnam:

Without mentioning President Johnson's bomb halt, the official North Vietnam newspaper Nhan Dan charged the United States is planning a "new plot" in Vietnam. A report from Tokyo quoted the paper as saying: "The United States is attempting to increase bombing of North Vietnam and a so-called fraudulent proposal for peace talks is aimed at getting rid of isolation from the people of the world."

Swedish radio in Stockholm said its correspondent in Prague, Czechoslovakia, understood the North Vietnamese ambassador there to say he welcomed President Johnson's speech and that it "could open the way to peace."

Officials in Europe familiar with Vietnamese affairs predicted Hanoi would reject peace talks on the ground that parts of North Vietnam still were being bombed. However, the North Vietnamese delegation in Paris went so far as to relay a copy of Johnson's speech to Hanoi.

The North Vietnamese Army newspaper in Hanoi said today Johnson is trying to mislead public opinion with his bombing halt, Tass news agency reported from Moscow.

Air Force officials in Washington feared that a bombing halt of one month would allow the North Vietnamese to rush 100,000 tons of war supplies into the South. Allies now must intercept the new flow of goods ticketed for enemy troops south of the demilitarized zone, the officials said.

The Soviet ambassador to Britain turned a cold shoulder to a British overture for peace talks based on the bombing outback. Seeking a resumption of the Geneva conference on Vietnam, of which the Soviet Union and Britain are co-chairmen, British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart met for 45 minutes Monday night with Ambassador Mikhail Smirnovsky and told him he was ready to fly to Moscow to see Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

"Mr. Smirnovsky restated some of the familiar Russian and North Vietnamese positions so you could not say I was encouraged," Stewart said in a television interview afterward.

But he added: "This move will not have been wasted. It will prove in time to be part of the process that in the end will get peace."

In Cairo, a member of a visiting Viet Cong delegation said the President's speech indicated "the Americans mean no peace."

2-Week Moratorium

Nixon Declares Halt in War Policy Criticism During LBJ Peace Try

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon says he favors a two-to-three week moratorium on criticism of President Johnson's Vietnam policy "while we explore this avenue for peace."

The leading contender for the Republican presidential nomination said Monday he would hold off making "the comprehensive statement on Vietnam which I had planned for this week."

'Ready to Deliver'

But he added the statement was "all prepared and will be ready to deliver if the bombing pause fails to produce meaningful negotiations and a reduction of the fighting. I hope this is a speech that is never delivered."

Nixon praised the President for his peace efforts but emphasized his view that "a bombing halt by itself would not be a step toward peace."

He said he assumed the president "would not have announced a bombing halt under present conditions unless his action was based on private diplomatic information available only to the government."

"I further assume that intensive and delicate diplomatic moves are now under way, possibly involving the Soviet Union," he said, adding that he decided on a moratorium "in order to avoid anything that might even inadvertently cause difficulty for our negotiators."

Nixon said, "I think that if this bombing pause has been agreed to or initiated because of some assurances that the administration has that it's going to bring some progress, then it would be a very good step."

"We'll know, I would say, within two or three weeks whether this pause was based on that or whether it was simply unilateral desperate action," he said. "If it was the latter it was a mistake."

He declared that "unless this bombing pause does produce some real progress toward peace, the disillusionment in this country is going to be very, very strong and the reaction will be to do more on the military side."

Wit, Humor in Campaign

McCarthy vs. Stevenson

By JACK BELL

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — The benevolent spirit of the late Adlai E. Stevenson must be hovering delightedly over the campaigning of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy.

Like Stevenson, whom he admired greatly, McCarthy is imparting a freshness of wit and good humor to the ordinarily dull grind of grubbing for votes.

There is one difference. Stevenson, twice his party's presidential nominee, loathed primaries. He complained that all of the chores of making set speeches, ploughing through crowds grasping every hand in sight and attending cocktail parties for local political bigwigs didn't give a man time to think.

McCarthy, on the other hand, seems to take all of this traditional campaigning in stride. He never had so much national attention before and he is basking and expanding in it.

Secret Amusement

But there is nearly always on McCarthy's countenance the same wry amusement that Stevenson used to wear. The faintly arched eyebrows hints at the inward wonderment that a man should be required to go through all the campaign antics to make himself a contender for the world's highest elective office.

If it had been left to Stevenson—and if it were left to McCarthy—there would be calm, serious discussion of the issues. And cut out the monkeyshines.

Perhaps he doesn't do it as well as Stevenson, who was an

Industrial Areas Left Untouched

By GEORGE ESPER Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes stepped up their attacks on the southern part of North Vietnam Monday and Hanoi radio said they staged new raids today. A broadcast said without confirmation in Saigon that one plane was shot down.

The increased attacks followed President Johnson's ban on bombing of the Hanoi-Haiphong industrial heartland and extended 210 miles northwest of the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam.

U.S. bombers flew more than 100 missions against the North Monday, nearly double the average number before Johnson's curtailment order. The number of air missions over the southern part of North Vietnam has averaged about 60 a day, with an average of 40 to 50 missions daily against targets around Hanoi, Haiphong and north to the Chinese border.

Fate of Crew Hanoi radio said U.S. fighter-bombers today repeatedly attacked Thanh Hoa Province. It said defense units shot down a F4 fighter, but made no mention of the crew.

This is the same area attacked Monday, a bombing raid on a supply base a mile south of the coastal city of Thanh Hoa about 210 miles northwest of the demilitarized zone and 80 miles south of Hanoi. A U.S. military spokesman said this raid was in the area allowed under Johnson's orders.

Johnson in his speech Sunday night announcing curtailment of the bombing said U.S. planes would continue to attack the area just north of the DMZ because of the threat from there to forward allied positions below the DMZ. He said his ban applied to "most" of North Vietnam and to an area in which 90 per cent of the North Vietnamese live. Johnson gave no hint of how long the cutback would continue. But South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu told a news conference Hanoi must give a satisfactory response in "a matter of weeks, not a matter of months." He said his government had agreed to the curtailment.

Thieu under questioning by newsmen said if the United States wants to take its troops out of Vietnam, his government could begin to replace them by the end of this year. But he made clear he would hate to see the Americans go.

In South Vietnam, Viet Cong gunners sent seven rockets whistling into Saigon's big Tan Son Nhut airbase today and shelled three other places from Hue along the northern seacoast to the Mekong Delta. Damage from the shelling was described as light and in all nine persons were wounded.

One shell set fire to a tank at South Vietnam's biggest oil depot, at Nha Be, six miles south of Saigon. It had been hit with mortars Monday.

Operation Scotland The U.S. Command announced the end of Operation Scotland, in which it said 1,561 North Vietnamese troops have been killed around Khe Sanh in five months.

Ending the "reinforced regiment size surveillance and spoiling operation" appeared to be a bookkeeping action. A U.S. spokesman said the 6,000 Marines at Khe Sanh are continuing to defend the combat base in South Vietnam's northwest corner, which American officers say is menaced by 16,000 to 20,000 enemy troops.

American casualties in the operation were 204 Marines killed and 1,622 wounded, most in the steady North Vietnamese artillery attacks on the base, the command said. Of the wounded, 777 returned to duty after treatment, the spokesman said.

The Marines were supported in the operation by 5,561 air strikes against North Vietnamese troops and gun positions menacing Khe Sanh. The Leathernecks reported capturing 50 suspected enemy soldiers, 112 individual weapons and 66 crew-served weapons.

Drug Addict Total Climbs To 62,045

Half of Known Users White, Half Live in New York City

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bureau of Narcotics says the nation's number of known drug addicts climbed last year to 62,045—half of them white, half nonwhite.

Henry L. Giordana, commissioner of narcotics, presented the statistics at a recent hearing of a House Appropriation subcommittee. His report was made public today.

The increasing use of marijuana, Giordana said, particularly by those under 25, is almost certain to lead to stronger, more dangerous drugs.

Nearly half of the total known addicts, he reported, lived in New York City.

And, he said, addiction shows no discrimination. Of the total 30,881 were white, 30,815 nonwhite. Most, 28,414, were in the 21-30 age bracket; 22,989 between 31 and 40; 8,425 over 40; 2,085 between 18 and 20; and 132 were 17 or younger.

He said New York State has 32,347 drug addicts compared to second-ranked California with 7,457. Illinois is next with 6,567, followed by New Jersey with 2,834. The 46 other states have 12,840 total.

The nine cities trailing New York in the number of known users are Chicago, 6,489; Los Angeles, 1,997; Detroit, 1,642; Baltimore, 1,348; Philadelphia, 1,296; Washington, D.C., 1,106; Newark, N.J., 1,004; San Diego, Calif., 587, and Buffalo, N.Y., 550.

Giordana said the number of new addicts reported to his bureau in 1967 was 6,417 for the nation, compared to 6,047 the previous year.

Inherent in the increase, Giordana told the subcommittee, is marijuana problem. He said the number of arrests for marijuana in 1964 was 12,482. Two years later the total had risen to 24,815.

Efforts for Naught

SEATTLE (AP) — W. H. Welch reported that burglars apparently spent hours over the weekend trying to pound open a safe in his office, although instructions on how to open the safe were posted prominently in the office. Besides, the safe was empty.

Stassen Asks Creation of City Colleges

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau MADISON — The creation of "city grant" colleges to cure the ills of the major cities of America was called for Monday by Republican presidential hopeful Harold Stassen.

Stassen, speaking here at a businessmen's club, proposed that the federal government endow a series of colleges in every major metropolitan center of the United States.

He compared the schools to the land grant colleges, created more than a century ago, to provide centers of agricultural research and learning in every major farming state of the country.

"I think we have problems as urgent and pressing and desperate as in our inner cities" as this nation did in the 1850s when it sought to solve agricultural problems through land grant schools, he said.

Stassen proposed that the schools could move strongly into training for public service needs, such as nursing education and public health service.

Stassen admitted that the program would cost "billions—but it would still be essential. And it would still cost less than the Vietnam war is costing.

U. S. Agreements

Veto Sweetens Paper Gold Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Basic reforms now planned would require an 85 per cent vote and the United States, with sweetening concessions to continental Europe in winning agreement this past weekend on a plan to create new international money.

The big sweetener is a veto over some basic operations of the International Monetary Fund by the six Common Market countries.

This was revealed by U.S. officials who said the new plan for paper gold adopted at Stockholm this past weekend can work without French participation but it will be a year at the earliest and undoubtedly longer, before any paper gold will change hands.

"They can't wreck it," one official said of French reluctance, to go along with the plan approved by the other nine richest nations of the non-Communist world—including France's five common market partners.

Officials Optimistic Congress will be asked to approve this year the new arrangement—together with the basic reform in the IMF—and government officials say they are optimistic about its chances in both the House and the Senate.

The IMF reforms consist of changes in voting requirements on three specific issues to give a veto to the Common Market—France, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg.

The Common Market members have 16 per cent of the weighted votes which are based on the amount of money each country has contributed to the IMF.

The United States already has a veto over the affected operations and would retain it.

LBJ Concession on Budget Might Assist Tax Proposal

Most Programs Won't be Helped By Retirement

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's decision not to seek re-election isn't likely to break the congressional stalemate over much of his legislative program.

But in his Sunday night speech to the nation he might have breathed new life into his tax-increase proposal by making clear he would accept spending cuts in his budget.

That was the consensus of veteran Congress members as they took a new look at the picture Monday.

Their reasoning was based on the political logic that if an incumbent President who is likely to remain in power four more years couldn't get Congress moving, an outgoing executive would have less influence.

Lost Control Senators and congressmen seeking re-election—and most of them are no longer need fear possible political reprisals if they don't respond to White House pressures. The famed LBJ arm-twisting approach lost its firm grip with the President's decision not to seek another term.

Neither can the President hold out the promise of political rewards to the faithful for four more years if he leaves the White House next January.

"The President has scuttled his legislative program," one veteran House member commented.

"We will, in effect, be in a long period of 'lame duck' status," said Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex. "At this critical juncture in our history, we cannot afford a period of diminished influence from the White House."

Thus "diminished influence" has been apparent since Democrats lost so many seats in the 1966 House elections. While Johnson's domestic programs once flew through a cooperative Congress, they have difficulty keeping alive now.

Pending White House requests to project some programs into the future—for five years in some cases—aren't likely to be granted. One-year extensions may be the new order in the Senate today.

The major Johnson proposal most likely to be boosted on Capitol Hill is his request for a tax increase to cut down the federal deficit.

The House has blocked action on this, contending the President first should cut government spending.

Supporters of the proposal have tried to push it through the Senate and a vote on it was called in the Senate today.

In his Sunday night speech Johnson said he expected Congress to cut his budget and increase the tax rate to accept such a tax bill—a 10 per cent surcharge on income taxes.

Students Riot in Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Tanks and armored personnel carriers loaded with combat troops patrolled Rio through the night after student rioting in the metropolis and four other cities. It was the most serious violence since the army coup in 1964.

At least one person was killed in Rio and another death was reported in Goiania, where an estimated 3,000 demonstrators battled 600 police. Other clashes were reported at Belo Horizonte, Fortaleza and at the university campus in Brasilia, the capital.

Machine-gun fire was heard in downtown Rio when federal troops came in after 11 policemen had been wounded by gunfire. Unofficial reports said more than 100 persons were hurt.

Police used tear gas, clubs, rifle butts and bayonets against rioting antigovernment demonstrators. A Molotov cocktail was thrown at the door of the building housing the U.S. aid mission, but no casualties or damage were reported there.

Attacks also were reported on U.S. Information Service offices in Fortaleza and Porto Alegre, again without casualties. Students in Rio shouted slogans against the military-supported government of President Arthur da Costa e Silva. In Paulo, they carried placards calling for an end to censorship and wage control and an increase in appropriations for education.

The demonstrations had been called to protest the death of a high school student last Thursday when police broke up a group demonstrating against conditions at student restaurants.

'Communist Oriented' The army, under orders to maintain order "at any cost," claimed the new disturbances were "clearly Communist oriented."

The armed forces overthrew leftist President Joao Goulart on March 31, 1964, and General Humberto Castello Branco took over.

He retired last March a Costa e Silva, elected by government majority in Congress, became president. There have been recent signs of discontent with his government and one retired marshal suggested restoration of popular election of the president and amnesty for the more than 100 Brazilians stripped of their political rights since 1964.

The Next Move Is Ho's

President Johnson's decision once more to try a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam has a greater ring of sincerity about it than previous halts.

Most important is the President's decision not to run for re-election or to accept the nomination. The bombing halt now cannot be considered merely a political move to get votes or to boost the President's own political fortunes or even those of the Democratic Party.

Secondly, the order for all air and sea attacks on North Vietnam to be halted except for a small area just north of the demilitarized zone does this time seem to indicate a firm effort to encourage the leaders in Hanoi to come to the conference table. The other halts were either of a short and announced duration or at a time when they seemed aimed more at impressing Americans with the President's desire for peace than any real effort to get that peace.

In early 1965 American authorities seemed so convinced that the bombing was effectively hurting the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong war effort that it is doubtful that they wanted to end the war on any compromise terms. Since the Tet offensive and the breakdown of the pacification program, revelations of ever greater corruption in Saigon and the reluctance of the South Vietnamese to contribute much to fighting their war, the optimism has disappeared in Washington. At long last, President Johnson appears to realize that we are indeed bogged down in the middle of the swamp and to consider the warnings from military men of all persuasions that it is madness to be involved in a land war in Asia.

There is and should be concern that the bombing halt endangers American forces in South Vietnam, particularly those in remote posts like Khe Sanh. We do not know the military needs involved but certainly if there is any sign of de-escalation on the part of the North Vietnamese, consideration should be given to withdrawing from such areas. The northern two provinces of South Vietnam seem securely at the mercy of or under the control of the Viet Cong anyway so there is small likelihood of extended terrorism of local residents if we do pull back.

The President's appeal to Great Britain and the Soviet Union to use their good offices as co-chairmen of the 1954 Geneva Conference also gives credence to the opinion that the bombing halt is a real effort to find a means of accommodation with the National Liberation Front and the North Vietnamese.

The question is exactly what sort of connotation Hanoi will put upon the bombing halt and the President's announced decision not to run for re-election. In the past we have tended to believe that there would be little chance of peace talks until after the November election unless the enemy has been hurt more than is indicated. If Ho Chi Minh still wants to wait and see who will be the next President of the United States, he still could slow down military activities enough so as to enable the Americans to continue our own restraint. But if he sees the halt as a sign that the United States is on the run and that he should increase his own military pressure and finish the job, such a miscalculation must mean a renewed American military effort or a resort to the enclave policy and a long period of sitting and waiting. The United States made just such a miscalculation at the time of the Bay of Tonkin resolution and we can only hope that the North Vietnamese intelligence is superior to ours at that time.

The next move is clearly up to Ho Chi Minh and the leaders of the National Liberation Front. How they act and what they say will do a good deal toward demonstrating to the rest of the world, including the Soviet Union, exactly which side wants to keep the war going.

Guns and/or Butter

It seems rather likely that the next member of the Johnson Administration to turn in his resignation will be Undersecretary of the Treasury Joseph W. Barr.

In testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations committee, Mr. Barr flatly stated that the United States cannot have both guns and butter unless it wishes to finance the Vietnamese war at a subsistence level of existence in this country.

Americans know full well that they have never objected to belt tightening and austerity for a cause in which they believed. Obviously our massive participation in World War II was far more extensive than the pressures upon us now because of Vietnam and there were few complaints and little bitterness. In the early days of the Korean War, too, the majority of American citizens were behind our government because the aggression had been so obvious and the rest of the free world was behind us as well at least in public statements.

There will be charges that the reluctance of many Americans to agree to the austerity of which Mr. Barr speaks comes because we are too wealthy, too fat, too accustomed to a hedonistic way of life. There is some truth to the charges. Americans continue to spend vast amounts of money for luxuries, to demand new cars, more elaborate television sets, second and even third homes, shorter working hours, longer vacations and fewer duties. There is no sign of austerity or sacrifice among the thousands of Americans who take ski trips, European tours and weekend hops to Bermuda.

The trouble is that so far only a handful of Americans have been involved in the war. And this attitude that the war was something we could get over and done with in a long weekend without any really serious trouble has been and still is promoted by the Johnson Administration — with some notable exceptions such as Mr. Barr.

We do not know the reason for this attitude. It may be President Johnson and his advisors were unsure themselves as to why we are in Vietnam, our aims and objectives. They may have realized that it was impossible to sell the war to the American people as a necessary thing for either moral reasons — the halting of communism and protection of a free people — or for matters of self-defense — that unless halted in Vietnam, the enemy would be landing in San Francisco. Or it may be that they believed that this was a simple war and that in truth American troops would be coming home in 1964 or 1965 or 1968. We lean toward the latter explanation.

The American people will sacrifice for a cause in which they believe and we don't think our affluence today means that we are completely over the hill. But love of country also means respect for the policies of that country and for the integrity of its leaders.

Retirees in the Peace Corps

The question of what to do after retirement plagues many an adult who has reached the mandatory retirement age and still has years of good and productive work in him. A Washington official recently came up with a suggested answer to this problem.

Peace Corps Director Jack Vaughn says that his agency has tried to recruit workers from the retired population but has met with little success. He explains, "Retired teachers, craftsmen and farmers intrigue us the most. They are a gold mine and some of them have at least 15 years of service left and could do wonders in the many underdeveloped countries. Instead, we find many of them living in retirement villages in Florida, throwing away their years of experience."

Vaughn's suggestion gains importance in light of the fact that the Peace Corps currently has 50,000 requests for volunteers which it cannot fill. This is more impressive when one considers that the agency has sent out 35,000 volunteers to 63 countries in the six years of its existence.

The maturity which is reached upon retirement age often is coupled with mental and physical well-being, all of which can be used for the good of society. For those oldsters who have the desire to travel abroad for a few years and could profitably aid the Peace Corps in its assistance to underdeveloped nations, the suggestion of Vaughn deserves serious consideration. We may be living in the Age of Youth, but retired adults still have talents which can and should be used by our nation.

John Is Dead in Vietnam,
But What About You and Me

Editor, Post-Crescent:

John Hartzheim is dead. The small story on page one, section B of a recent Post-Crescent didn't tell us much, just that there would be a memorial mass, that John was a graduate of Appleton High School, when he joined the Navy, when he left for Vietnam and when he died. Oh, yes, your story also listed the survivors. It was a small story, a common one, and one that appears in the newspapers everyday.

But your story wasn't correct; it wasn't complete. You forgot a couple of the survivors; you forgot you and me.

John is dead and you and I are alive and I feel we should ask why?

In your case you were lucky, you have managed to live through a couple of wars and successfully played the game of life. But wait a minute, remember than an ungodly number of men didn't make it through those wars. They died, but there is a difference between them and John. They were, in a sense, lucky, they died for something they and the folks back home believed in. A death like this is something I think every man deserves.

John didn't have the chance you did. He died fighting a political mistake. Behind him was a nation divided on the why and how of this war. And what scares me most is that maybe John didn't believe that he was acting in the best interests of his fellow man. To die for a cause that you don't believe in is a terrible way to end your existence.

In World War II it was a question of national security and you and millions of other Americans believed that something had to be done and you did it. You believed in the cause. But what about John, Bob Reinke and Mike Laux? What about the youth of today?

No, I don't think these young men felt our national security was at stake, that our freedom was in danger. I think they died for a society that doesn't care about them. How else could you allow them to die and kill in a foreign land?

These young men had every right in the world to enjoy life and to live their lives to the fullest, but no, our government has committed itself to an illegal and immoral war that we cannot possibly win and because of this commitment, John, Bob, Mike and many more have died.

When will people wake up and realize that our government has made a mistake? When will they stop the senseless slaughter of American youth and the Vietnamese nation?

It is possible that John, Bob, and Mike haven't died for nothing. Maybe as an American falls in battle, an American at home will realize that this is wrong and that the war must end. But my God, what a price to pay.

Next comes the question of how this crime may be stopped. Examine the presidential candidates and then vote for the man who will end the war. Vote for John, Bob and Mike.

People's Forum
Candidate for President
Was Ignored by Press

Editor, Post-Crescent:

The week of March 24, a very distinguished gentleman was campaigning in the State of Wisconsin as a "write-in candidate" for President of the United States. Some of the cities he had speaking engagements in were Green Bay, Fond du Lac and Milwaukee. His "platform" is to put the U.S. Constitution in full force and effect. This man is the author of The Liberty Amendment (which has been approved by seven state legislatures), publisher of Freedom Magazine, and a columnist with American Way Features. He is a direct descendant of Thomas E. Stone, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, and is a great-grand-nephew of philosopher Ralph Waldo Emerson. By this time young readers are wondering, "what is this man's name"? His name is Willis E. Stone.

Inasmuch as we had a man (and I do mean man) of such great prominence in our midst, why the news blackout? I never saw a news release in your paper. Yet I noticed The Post-Crescent gave plenty of news coverage to Eugene McCarthy, Bobby Kennedy, Paul Newman, Harold Stassen and people of similar "liberal or socialistic" mentality. Yet,

Mr. Willis E. Stone is not even mentioned. And this is the man who came in third running as a Republican in the New Hampshire Primary. Why?

It is no secret that the news media (radio, tv, newspapers, etc.) plays an important part in any election. They usually form public opinion either for or against a candidate. (The news media played a big part in bringing Castro to power in Cuba, for putting LBJ in the White House, and in Germany newspapers were a key factor in bringing Hitler to power. These are just a few examples) The news media have a moral obligation to edit and publish news in a truthful matter. News should not be distorted or biased in opinion, but should be the truth! However, I feel that the greatest sin or disservice to the general public committed by the major news media is omission of news rather than distortion of news. Certainly, this seems to be the case of Mr. Willis E. Stone.

All I am asking is that you be fair to all candidates for elective office, that you give them equal and truthful news coverage.

Wisconsin Report
Deaths of Bob Pierce,
W. J. Aberg Sadden
Their Many Friends

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — One of the saddening but inevitable experiences of the public affairs reporter who starts his work as a very young man is that he will mourn the passing in his middle years of the leaders in public life he knew at the beginning of his career, in his learning years.

Thus it was during the last

fortnight when the news dispatches related the deaths of two of the most useful and creative and responsible public men it has been this correspondent's pleasure to know as a state government reporter.

They were Robert L. Pierce of Menomoneie, who had earned the affectionate and respectful name of "Mr. Republican," and William J. P. Aberg of Madison, who in any objective history of his times will be recorded as one of the great men in the Wisconsin natural resources conservation and management record of the last four decades.

HAD MUCH IN COMMON

I don't know whether the two knew each other, either slightly or well. But they had much in common, in their devotion to the public interest, in their unflinching willingness to devote money and energy and time, sometimes to the considerable disadvantage of their private affairs, to the public interest as they saw it.

Both men had lasting and compelling interests in vital phases of public affairs.

Perhaps no man in the recent history of the Wisconsin Republican Party had a richer or more productive experience as a party organization man than did Mr. Pierce. He went from the humble rank of precinct committeeman long ago, through county organization politics, the district level, the state organization leadership, and for the last dozen years was the ranking spokesman for his party in the state as national committeeman.

BELIEVED IN SERVING

Such service for many men would be demanding enough. But during virtually his entire adult life, Mr. Pierce also served usefully and with quiet but forceful leadership in public education, in his home city's school administration, in the state vocational school program, and for many years, as a member of the Board of Regents of State Colleges, now known as the Board of Regents of State Universities. He recognized the obligation of those citizens who are able to do so to contribute to the party of his choice, and to the more direct needs of local and state government and community civic problems.

A wise reporter once wrote that pure objectivity in reporting public affairs is probably unattainable, but that the conscientious journalist tries to maintain an awareness of his prejudices, real or potential. Perhaps it is a manifestation of this reporter's own background, but it is a striking fact that so many of the best public officials and political leaders of Wisconsin come from small towns.

Thus it was with Mr. Pierce, who grew up in the small town of Durand, and with Mr. Aberg, who emigrated from Sweden as a young man to the hamlet of Shell Lake in far northern Wisconsin. Mr. Aberg made his own way as he acquired an education, established himself as one of the leading lawyers in Madison many years ago, and for most of his adult life devoted himself to the cause of natural resources conservation with a zeal that was matched by few and creativity and influence equalled by none.

SERVED STATE WELL

The voices of two of the finest citizens Wisconsin has brought forth in this century have now been stilled, after full and satisfying careers. Both men could have left far larger financial legacies, if they had not involved themselves so intensely over such long periods in public problems, mostly without compensation, and, indeed, mostly without even the reimbursement of their out-of-pocket expenses of considerable size.

Reporters are supposed to be indifferent and hard-nosed about the passing parade of personalities. But let there be no doubt about this — Mr. Pierce and Mr. Aberg will be missed by this one.

Strictly Personal Need Award System
For Better Drivers

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

It is obvious that Americans think more of their cars than any other people in the world; it is even possible that Americans think more of their cars than they do of people — including their own families.

We not only kill 50,000 fellow citizens a year, and injure millions more, but we spend a sizeable amount of our disposable income in buying or financing, and keeping up, a car. With the exception of a house, it is our single largest expenditure.

Many of our primal feelings are channeled into the car: pride and aggression and envy and competitiveness and sexual dominance and social status. Most of these emotions are given a negative outlet behind the wheel; that is, we use the car to demonstrate our superiority or to compensate for our sense of inferiority.

All of this is illicit, and basically ungratifying. What is needed, it seems to me, is something on the order of Great Britain's "Institute of Advanced Motorists," formed there about a dozen years ago by the minister of transport, as a non-profit organization to promote, recognize, and reward better driving.

Here is the way it works: There is a payment of a small fee for taking the initial test, and annual membership dues of only $2. A 15-hour basic course is given, and those who pass are presented with a diploma, a car badge, and membership in the High Performance Club.

These evidences of advanced driving ability have more than token value. Members can obtain insurance for their cars at rates substantially below average, the reductions being about 15 per cent for the first year, and 30 per cent for subsequent years — no mean incentive.

Further, those cars sporting the badges are regarded with respect not only by other motorists but by traffic police and officials as well. They have no need to show off or to drive recklessly to demonstrate their dexterity — In fact, they tend to set a good example to other drivers by the kind of courtesy that only experts feel inwardly secure enough to indulge in.

As the lead editorial in the magazine, "Car and Driver" said in a recent issue: "We have to change our view of the automobile and of the rules which govern its operation. We need to train our drivers better; we need to be far, far more stringent in our decisions about who will and who will not drive." And we need a way of giving the capable motorist some tangible proof of his prowess, so that the badge says far more than any acrobatics on the highway.

Split on Big Issues

Republicans Far From United on Capitol Hill

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The appearance of unity in the Republican Party with Richard M. Nixon breezing along toward the presidential nomination obscures deep divisions in the party on issues before Congress.

In the big fight over spending cuts, a sizable group of House Republicans is trying to counter the meat-ax approach favored by the GOP leaders with a plan to plow some savings into programs to help the cities.

The group has set up a staff, conducted hearings and welded a program of cuts totaling $6.5 billion, of which $2.5 billion would be used to expand programs to meet "urgent human needs and the urban crisis."

'New Priorities'

"We need a new set of priorities," says Rep. Charles E. Goodell of upstate New York, a leader of the effort, "one that recognizes the enormous financial difficulties facing us but which also recognizes the terrible human waste which is resulting from past and current inattention."

About 40 Republicans, mostly younger ones and those from the suburbs, have indicated an interest in such an approach. But the party hierarchy is lined up solidly behind a move to slash spending without permitting any increases.

On no issue, however, is the split in Republican ranks sharper than on the open-housing provision in the Senate-passed civil rights bill now before the House.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, the GOP boss in the House, is insisting the bill be sent to a conference with the Senate to seek a compromise on the housing section. He has a majority of the Republicans with him, but Rep. Clark MacGregor of suburban Minneapolis, who wants the Senate bill accepted, says as many as 45 per cent of the 187 House Republicans are prepared to desert Ford and vote for the bill.

Odds With Dirksen

Ford's refusal to go along with the Senate bill also puts him at odds with his party's leader in the Senate, Everett M. Dirksen, who played a key role in breaking a Southern filibuster to get the bill passed.

Before New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller became a primary campaign dropout the division on both the urban and civil rights issues followed roughly the split among members favoring Nixon or Rockefeller for the presidential nomination.

Rockefeller's supporters felt it would be a calamity for the Republican Party, needing urban support, to go into a presidential election without a clear-cut record of support for the Senate bill, particularly with George C. Wallace siphoning off Southern votes.

Now, civil rights leaders are urging Nixon to see if he can't get Ford to change his mind and accept the Senate bill.

Just as Rockefeller avoided openly tangling with Nixon in the name of party unity, so the divisions on issues are muted in the House.

But they are there, and if the Republicans should know the luxury of being the majority party in the next Congress, they will be hard to keep hidden.

Plan Meeting For Organizing Young K of Cs

A meeting to organize a Circle of Columbian Squires, for Catholic boys 13-18, has been set for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday by the Knights of Columbus, Father Fitzmaurice Council.

The organization is not restricted to boys whose fathers are K of C members.

A number of Knights have been selected to help establish the Squires Circle. They will serve as counselors and leaders.

The general objective of the circle is two-fold: to assist boys through adolescence and to develop leadership among older boys.

The first circle was established nationally at Duluth in 1925.

Recently the youth organization was raised to full department within the K of C organization and will have professional field-men assisting in the forming of circles throughout the country.

Artificial Heart Supported by Body Predicted for Availability by 1973

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high-ranking government heart researcher forecasts development by 1973 of a totally implantable artificial heart based on a new concept of energy-supply: Use of the body's own digested food and inhaled oxygen.

Electrical energy to pump the robot heart would come from a fuel cell that would burn oxygen from the blood stream and also glucose, a form of sugar produced by food digested in the normal fashion.

Dr. Frank Hastings, chief of the artificial heart research program of the National Heart Institute, told The Associated Press that promising results have been achieved at the laboratory level in developing the fuel-cell concept.

He said it looks like the best prospect yet for ultimately making completely implantable artificial hearts available to hundreds of thousands of cardiac patients newly stricken each year. He indicated it would eliminate the need for human heart transplants.

The idea would be to graft the fuel-cell—consisting of a porous but tough, jelly-like plastic material—into the aorta, the body's major artery, beginning at the point where the blood vessel normally connects with the natural heart. The cell would employ a thin sheet of gold-alloy fibers which would act as a catalyst in promoting energy-producing chemical reactions.

Electrical energy, produced by the fuel-cell, would flow to the "muscles" of the nearby implanted artificial heart, enabling it to pump blood in and out of itself.

LBJ Decision Aids Democrat Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic senators openly critical of President Johnson's Vietnam policies are privately expressing relief that he has decided against running again.

Many had viewed Johnson as the party's likely nominee and felt that—if this were the case—they would be hard-pressed to run under his political mantle with their opposition to his war policies a matter of public record for opponents to seize on.

In this presidential election year, Democrats face stiff fights in both the Senate and House. Republicans express confidence in their chances of winning 31 seats and grabbing House control while sharply reducing the nearly 2-1 Democratic majority in the Senate.

Of 35 Senate seats being contested, 23 are held by Democrats, including 8 outspoken critics of U.S. war policies.

"It seems to me it (Johnson's decision) reduces some of the tension and conflict in the campaign," Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., a war policy critic, said in an interview. He added that he thought it would make his own re-election bid easier.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., who has generally stood by the President on the war issue, said he doubts the President's decision will have a major impact on his own re-election bid.

But he acknowledged "the chances of keeping unity might be better," although adding he has always expected most Democrats to line up behind whoever the nominee is.

Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., a war policy critic whose current term still has two years to run, said he thinks the President's decision pleased the Democratic senators running for re-election.

Besides McGovern, seeking his second term in a normally Republican state, Democratic opponents of Vietnam policies running this year include Sens. Wayne Morse of Oregon, Frank Church of Idaho, J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas, Ernest Gruening of Alaska, Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin, Joseph S. Clark of Pennsylvania and Abraham A. Ribicoff of Connecticut.

The robot heart itself would consist of a tough but flexible rubbery material, which would be covered with a thin envelope of living tissue fashioned from a vein in the patient's leg.

Indicating that energy-supply is the major problem in the quest for perfecting artificial hearts, Dr. Hastings said the fuel-cell concept has certain theoretical advantages—including potentially greater safety—over a system that envisions using radioactive plutonium as the power source. A version of the latter system is also being developed by the National Heart Institute in cooperation with the Atomic Energy Commission.

MADISON (AP) — Wisconsin residents were urged recently by Gov. Warren P. Knowles to acquaint themselves with basic tornado safety rules.

indefatigable polisher of phrases, but McCarthy is adept at spicing his informal talks with little jokes on himself. He also has the same tendency as Stevenson to use pertinent quotations from the classics, poetry or prose that seem to fit the occasion.

In a recent speech, McCarthy took note of criticisms that his campaign organization was made up largely of college amateurs and lacked professional direction at the top.

"We may not be well organized at the top," he said, "but we are the best organized at the bottom that this country has ever seen."

McCarthy poked at his chief opponent, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., for setting up so many campaign committees. He was especially resentful, he intimated, that one Kennedy committee had been set up to deal with the Irish.

"I had really thought that we had made it—I didn't know that we were still considered a special class in America," he said.

McCarthy announced that to offset the proliferation of Kennedy committees, "We are setting up a subcommittee on retired left-hand pitchers from the Three-I League."

Downed Pilot Pulled From Lake Michigan

GRAND HAVEN, Mich. (AP) — Coast Guard rescue craft pulled a single-engine pontoon plane and its uninjured pilot out of Lake Michigan Monday night after the plane's engine conked out, forcing an emergency landing shortly after dark.

The Coast Guard said the pilot, Ronald A. Leppin, 36, of Wauwatosa, Wis., the sole occupant of the plane, was en route from Muskegon, Mich., to Milwaukee when the engine failed, forcing him to land in the choppy waters some 40 miles east of Milwaukee.

They said he spent about an hour and a half riding with the plane in the water before being picked up by a 30-foot Coast Guard rescue craft. He was in radio contact with rescue forces the entire time.

The Coast Guard said the boat then attempted to tow the plane back to Grand Haven, but had to give up because of the rough water and a leak that developed on one of the plane's pontoons.

Both Leppin and the plane soon were taken aboard the Coast Guard cutter Woodbine and taken to Grand Haven, where they arrived this morning.

Leppin's family said he was flying to Madison, Wis., from Maine, where he had pontoons installed on the plane. He had stopped to refuel at Muskegon, taking off at about 6:45 p.m.

The Federal Aviation Agency air safety supervisor in Muskegon announced this morning he will investigate the mishap.

Coast Guard rescue craft from Michigan and Wisconsin ports, as well as planes and helicopters, participated in the search.

What has happened in Czechoslovakia in its current political and economic revolution may prove to have a much heavier and more lasting impact on European communism than even the Hungarian uprising of 1956.

A News Analysis

In contrast to 1956, the Russians seemed relatively power less to do anything effective in Czechoslovakia. This illuminated the dramatic changes in European communism over the past dozen years.

What probably worries Moscow the most, at a time when communism is beset with divisive influences, is that the Czechoslovak experience will have a snowball effect which could further loosen the ties joining the Warsaw Pact nations.

The new Czechoslovak leadership has insisted it intends to retain the country's close ties to Russia but the Prague upheaval already has challenged some of the most sacrosanct of Marxist-Leninist doctrines. If the new regime continues on this course, Czechoslovakia will become another Yugoslavia, Marxist and Communist but tailoring doctrine to suit its own needs.

The events in Czechoslovakia invite comparison with the Hungarian revolution. The sources of the two upheavals were similar, but the differences are all important. Those differences relieved the Czechoslovaks of the threat of the sort of bloody aftermath in which the Hungarian revolution died.

The Hungarian revolution originated with unrest among students and other intellectuals whose rallying force was the Petofi Circle, named for the 19th century poet-patriot, Sandor Petofi. The thrust was anti-Communist.

The Czechoslovak upheaval, too, had its beginnings with unrest among students and writers. But the thrust was toward reform within the party's structure, for liberalized communism. It was not against the system as such, but against what the party leaders had made of that system.

Both countries reflected Yugoslavia's example. Yugoslavia in 1948 had successfully defied Moscow, and in expression of that defiance had undertaken liberalizing economic reforms.

In both cases, too, swelling intellectual unrest in Communist Poland provided a background.

In 1956, that unrest exploded into the Poznan riots in which hundreds were killed, wounded and jailed. Twelve years later, Poland again was in ferment, with rising demands for more freedoms.

In 1956, Moscow sent Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov to Poland, an implied threat of intervention. In 1956, Moscow sent Anastas Mikoyan to Budapest to try to take some heat out of the burgeoning revolt by dictating changes at the top of the party. This time, Moscow was in a poor position to interfere. Soviet party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev flew to Prague, apparently to support the tottering Antonin Novotny, the party chief and president, against a move to depose that unreconstructed old-line Stalinist.

Novotny Ejected
The Russians could do little. Novotny was ejected by the party's Central Committee. He was sustained in the presidency a few weeks, but ultimately was shorn of all influence.

One of the most important differences between 1968 and 1956 was that the Hungarian revolution was an armed uprising. It directly attacked Communist rule. It openly sought to tear Hungary out of the Warsaw Pact and the Soviet orbit.

The Czechoslovaks did not have to resort to arms, nor was Czechoslovakia occupied by Soviet troops.

In Hungary, the Russians were in control of the country, its roads, airfields and communications. It was a simple matter to march in and crush the revolution.

In Czechoslovakia, even if they wanted to risk it, the Russians could hardly have their full way short of naked military invasion. There already was too much division in the Communist world for the Russians to make a move which could lead to even more disintegration.

Dogmatic Elements

Czechoslovakia's Central Committee broke away from control of its presidium, and thus could resist even Brezhnev's presence. The Central Committee ran a way with the ball, ousted Novotny and elevated its own man, 46-year-old Alexander Dubcek, a Slovak whose attitude would be more in tune with a younger and less dogmatic party element.

The upheaval does not mean Western-style democracy is imminent. The new regime has placated Moscow somewhat by the appointment of Ludvik Svoboda, a Soviet favorite, as president. But the pressure for economic, political and social reforms is so strong that Moscow in the long run is likely to have no choice but to live with a sort of liberalized Communist rule in Czechoslovakia.

This could lead the Czechoslovaks eventually into a partnership with the Yugoslavs, and even possibly with the maverick Romanians who have been resisting total Soviet domination even though the Romanian regime internally retains some old Stalinist traits.

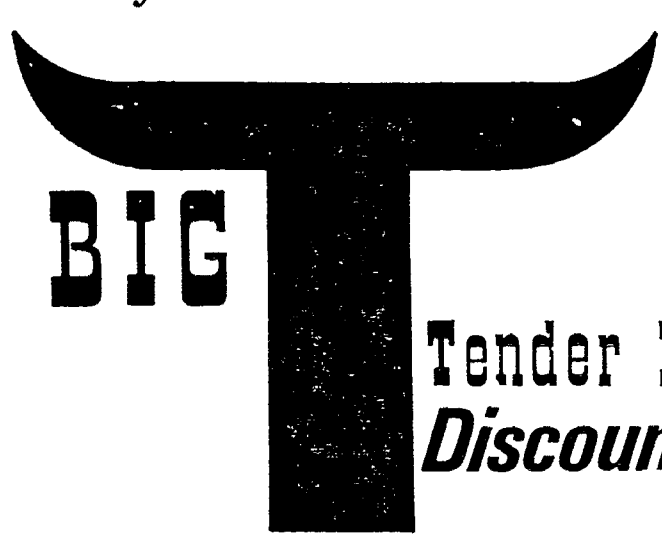

The Russians have their own internal problems with youthful intellectual elements demanding liberalization, and other Communist nations in Europe are experiencing similar pressures. Czechoslovakia's example can be a powerful influence.

fight for the Democratic nomination is unchanged and will stay that way, "no matter who may come into the contest with me," and no matter what happens in the primary elections.

Wisconsin politicians said Johnson's decision probably would reduce the primary vote turnout, which had been expected to reach a record 1.3 million. It also was expected to sharply reduce the party crossovers of Republicans, which had been expected to boost the McCarthy showing.

Johnson loyalists staged an election eve rally, but it had the atmosphere of a wake. They chanted "All the Way With LBJ," and Rep. Clement J. Zablocki urged an overwhelming vote for the President.

Nixon's only companions on the Republican ballot were California Gov. Ronald Reagan who disclaims presidential intentions, and Harold E. Stassen.

While McCarthy campaigned in Wisconsin, Kennedy sought and Johnson agreed to a meeting for the sake of national unity. McCarthy himself said he intends to write Johnson a letter, but is not going to ask for a meeting.

He shunned any suggestion that he and Kennedy might now combine forces. "I don't know what we have to get together on now," McCarthy said. "The President is now gone and the policy is changing."

"I am not entering into any accommodation."

Nixon was virtually assured of all 30 Republican presidential nominating votes in Wisconsin.

McCarthy was seeking 57 votes for the Democratic nomination, to add to the 20 he captured in New Hampshire's presidential primary, to the 72 he expects to reap in the uncontested Massachusetts primary, and to 16 or more he is likely to secure in Minnesota.

Four Democratic votes go to the winner in each of 10 congressional districts, 17 to the state-wide victor.

Cook-in Staged for Benefit of McCarthy

NEW YORK (AP) — Several hundred of the "beautiful people," who also are supporters of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, took over a New York discotheque Monday night to learn how to cook an omelet, to dance to an all-girl rock band and, in the process, to raise some money for the cause.

"If I can campaign for him in New Hampshire and Wisconsin, I can certainly eat an omelet for him," said actor Paul Newman, explaining his participation in the evening, billed as a "Cook-in for McCarthy," held at Arthur and costing $50 per couple.

Regular waiters, dressed in black turtlenecks and silver chains, and pretty, young McCarthy girls in straw hats, white blouses and dark skirts shared the task of keeping track of the overflow crowd.

Newman mixed campaigning and eating, telling the crowd about his efforts for the Minnesota Democrat in McCarthy's quest for the presidential nomination and polishing off most of a demonstration batch of French fondue, omelet and crepes suzette whipped up for the occasion by cookbook author Michael Field.

Why a "cook-in"? It's something different, said Mrs. Newman, actress Joanne Woodward. "The inevitable speeches and then the thing at the end where everyone asks for money. Ugh."

The 300 guests included pop art collector Ethel Skull, in black midiskirt; comedy writer Adolph Green, author Joseph Heller and Betty Friedan, who wrote "The Feminine Mystique."

Newman pointed to a McCarthy button on his lapel and said, "I've got the Democratic nominee right on my lapel right now."

provide the acid test of whether Hanoi wants peace or not."

Swede correspondent Olle Stenholm cautioned however that he and Ambassador Tri Chich Kah spoke in German, it was difficult to understand what he actually said and there may have been a misunderstanding.

Doubts Relay Stenholm reported from Prague he telephoned the North Vietnamese ambassador Monday and asked him for a statement on Johnson's speech limiting the bombing of North Vietnam in the hope this could open the way to peace talks.

Stenholm said he doubted that the ambassador had relayed Hanoi's opinions. He did not think the ambassador had been in contact with his government at the time he spoke.

In more Pentagon reaction to President Johnson's Sunday night speech on Vietnam, defense officials said the administration plans to mobilize up to 60,000 reservists. But they stressed the figure could vary up or down depending on Pentagon studies under way.

The Pentagon is expected Wednesday to issue an initial mobilization order affecting 15,000 men.

One of the President's major war-policy critics, Chairman J. Russell, asking them to use their Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said if the North Vietnamese "have not lost all sense of perspective" they will respond quickly to Johnson's bid.

Local Governments Must Follow States

Realignment Order Logical Extension by Court

By BARRY SCHWEID Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Propelled by logic and an extra-large dosage of judicial activism, the Supreme Court has spun out the revolution it began in March 1962 when it gave federal courts jurisdiction over malapportioned legislatures.

If state legislatures must be based on districts that are substantially equal in population, as the court said in June 1964 they must be, shouldn't city, town and county governing bodies that are creatures of these legislatures be bound by the same rule?

It took almost four years and a few false starts, but Monday five justices decided the logic was inexorable.

Little Difference "The actions of local government are the actions of the state," Justice Byron R. White reasoned. Logically he found little difference between the exercise of state power through legislatures and its exercise by election officials in the cities, towns and counties.

The logical simplicity was what appeared to irk most of the three dissenters. Thurgood Marshall, the ninth justice, did not participate.

Potter Stewart scorned the use of "sixth-grade arithmetic" to resolve subtle problems of constitutional law.

Abe Fortas said his colleagues had passed over a complex of values and factors with "the arithmetic simplicity of one equals one."

And John M. Harlan described himself as "frankly astonished at the ease" with which the court brought one man - one vote to grassroots government.

But these were the complaints of dissenters. The die is cast. The remaining question is how cities, towns and counties will get in line with Supreme Court-made law.

At the beginning of 1967 there were 81,253 units of local government in the United States. This includes 3,049 county governments, 18,051 municipal governments, 17,107 township governments, 21,782 school districts and 21,264 other special districts.

The number and variations are staggering. Some 20,000 to 23,000 elect officials by district. It is these that are most directly affected by Monday's decision.

Many already are in line with one man-one vote. Additionally, the state supreme courts of California, Maryland, Minnesota, Missouri, New York, South Dakota and Wisconsin have applied the principle to local government.

Those that are not in line and that exercise what White called "general governmental powers" will have to get in line.

Some will do so voluntarily, others will be directed to do so by their state legislatures and a third group, probably a minority, will hold off until they are ordered to comply by courts.

As for the remaining 60,000 local bodies, the ruling serves largely as an admonition that if they ever adopt the election-by-district system they cannot draw districts substantially unequal in population.

Some of these 60,000 may be exempt. White's decision hinted there may be exceptions in the case of the "special purpose now."

unit of government." The decision is not explicit, however, and the question of application awaits future court actions.

Among the school districts, the impact of the ruling appears limited. Most school board members are elected at large.

Arms, Drugs, Live Grenades Found in Mail

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Customs Bureau found live grenades, submachine guns, marijuana and switchblade knives in a test opening of all foreign mail packages at just two ports on one day.

"Absolutely amazing," said Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., after Commissioner Lester D. Johnson told a House Appropriations subcommittee about the tests at San Francisco and New York. He didn't say when the tests were made.

Practically all of the military weapons came from the Vietnam area, Johnson said—some possibly as souvenirs. He said military authorities are moving to crack down on the situation. His testimony was made public today.

"The thing that concerns me most about this situation is the military authorities are moving to crack down on the situation. His testimony was made public today."

"In the Second World War, there were a lot of souvenir weapons sent home but nothing of the sort that we are getting now."

Johnson Makes Life as 'Lame Duck' Look Easy

sign of being very relieved that he reached the farther shore safely.

For many reasons, Monday wasn't a typical day in Johnson's life as President. But neither was it unusual. He flew to Chicago on short notice—par for the recent course—and addressed the National Association of Broadcasters.

Even with the scant notice, one might have expected the President to be greeted at some point by sign-carrying antiwar pickets.

In truth, he got a catcall or two when he walked through the packed lobby of the Conrad Hilton Hotel—but he also got a lot of cheers that somehow sounded more sincere and enthusiastic than many in the recent past.

It was easy to imagine that a lot of Americans had been personally touched by Johnson's surprise disavowal of politics—and that these cheering people either were sorry about his decision or, for one reason or another, felt he had grown a few inches in the process. Earning an extra measure of respect.

Johnson then proceeded up the stairs to lecture the broadcasters. Although he made clear that he thinks wars abroad and riots at home, through some inherently unfair quirk of human nature, make more compelling television news fare than accounts of conciliation and consensus, his audience seemed grateful that he had come to share these presumably disquieting thoughts with them.

Then came the delayed flight back to Washington. Two chartered buses carrying the White House press corps to the airport collided on a crowded expressway. Although there were no serious injuries, each vehicle had to be hauled away. Replacements were sent—and that took time.

Johnson had to wait aboard his plane while his superhighway transfer was accomplished because all the reporters and photographers from Washington were flying with him aboard Air Force One.

If the delay disturbed him, he didn't show it. As soon as the survivors climbed aboard, he quickly began a good-humored razzing of one newsman who hadn't been ready with a quick question when the President abruptly had called on him by name at last Saturday's quickie news conference.

This was no cruel hazing, however. The President sat back in his cushioned swivel chair and beamed like Santa Claus.

'How Does Your Garden Grow?'

Spring gardening season has arrived at last. The long winter dormancy is over and the gardener may take safely to the back yard, trowel in hand, to ready his patch of soil for summer blooms. Of course, the health of the garden depends on the gardener, and to ready themselves for the season Ridgeway Country Club members gathered Saturday evening for a "How to Grow a Plant Party."

The Care and Feeding of growing things was the theme of Ridgeway Golf Club's "How to Grow a Plant Party" Saturday evening. Mr. and Mrs. James Lauderdale, above, admire the floral decorations. Below, Mr. and Mrs. Harley Loker and Mr. and Mrs. John Heinsohn chat over the "turf-builder," or dinner, course.

As any Green Thumb knows, plants must have liquid. Cocktails when served from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Also highly important is turf-builder. For Ridgeway members it was the King and the Claw — steak and lobster — with all the trimmings. Continued care strengthens the stems, according to club horticulturists, so dancing was on the program from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Committee members for the season opening event were the John Heinschms, Vincent De Cleenes, Evan Hanleys and Harley Lokers.

Dr. Barber to Speak At AAUW Meeting

"Women Are People. Too will be the topic of Dr. Ethel M. Barber, guest speaker at Wednesday's meeting of the American Association of University Women (AAUW). Members of the League of Women Voters and Business and Professional Women are invited to attend the talk which will begin at 8 p.m. at the Institute of Paper Chemistry. AAUW officers also will be elected.

After graduation from Milwaukee Downer College, Dr. Barber attended Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., where she earned a Ph.D. degree. She has taught both high school and college classes and served as staff musician at Station WTMJ, Milwaukee. In 1950, she originated the radio program "Women at Work," which she combined with her duties as writer and interviewer for the "Gateways to Learning" program during the succeeding 10 years.

Beef Eaters Never Had It So Good

Beef eaters have never had it so good! And most often it's choice — USDA Choice. According to reports by the Consumer and Marketing Service — the agency that administers the federal meat grading program—choice is the grade of nearly 50 per cent of all the beef now coming off the nations farms and feedlots.

While the beef industry has doubled its total output in the past 20 years, it also has tripled its production of choice beef.

No Harm to Milk

Lumps in evaporated milk are formed by the solids settling during storage. The consumer says the lumps do not harm the milk. To prevent lumping, turn or shake at frequent intervals during storage.

Base Family Television Habits On Sound Adult Judgment

Your home reflects your family's values, standards, goals, tastes and concerns. As a parent, it's your responsibility to provide a wide range of experiences in all areas of the child's life, according to Viola Wilkinson, family life specialist at the University of Wisconsin. One area which may be neglected is in the use of the television set. Most children are born into a home with one or more TV sets. By the time they graduate from high school, the average child has watched more than 15,000 hours of television and has seen over 500 films. During this same period, he has attended school 10,800 hours. Only sleeping surpasses TV as a time consumer. Little time may be left for exercise, fresh air and sunshine.

Habits Evaluated
In some homes television habits need to be evaluated and perhaps changed. Children need to develop an awareness of good programs as well as an interest in other activities. There is probably no better way to encourage children to use television effectively than to set a good example. If you view TV selectively, if you discuss critically what you see, and if you devote your leisure to a variety of activities, your children are much less likely to depend on television.

Use Judgment
Some of the most common difficulties with TV are the same difficulties that arise in other situations; discipline, sharing, standards, fatigue and appropriate behavior. The wise ways you've found to cope with these problems are the same ways you can cope with TV. A key part of your job is to use your adult judgement. What the books say, what the neighbors do, and what you half-thought to be done, may not be right. Your decisions should be guided by the framework of your own household.

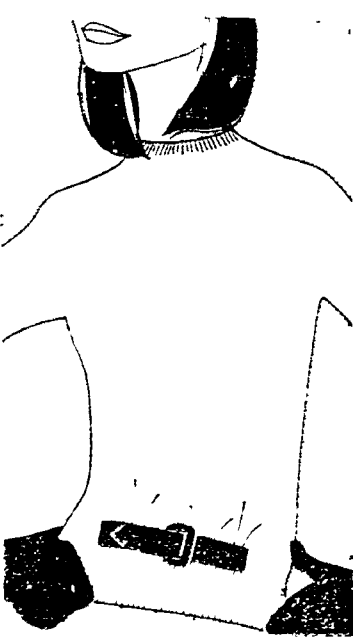

When children become old enough to share in decision making, television isn't a problem, it's an opportunity. It creates situations for parents and youngsters to talk together and to sit down and to do some joint planning. Only with the young child should you have to make arbitrary decisions. You may need to restrict TV to certain programs and to certain hours. As the child grows older, he should participate in making the rules. He should be permitted more freedom to rearrange his homework, chores or appointments to watch his favorite programs. Family decisions need to be part of an understood plan. They should be firm, clearcut and known in advance.

Don't let TV dictate to your household, concludes Mrs. Wilkinson. Be conscious of it and enjoy it, but evaluate it and base your decision regarding it on your knowledge of what is best for your child.

Why not! Give the classic sweater which seems so dull in today's fashion scene a new look. Make two buttonholes centered under the bustline or at the waistline, and run a ribbon or small soft belt in one side and around you (under the sweater) and out the other buttonhole and tie or buckle in front. Be sure the gathers are behind the belted area in front so that the sweater is close to the body there and hangs loosely at the sides and back. For those of you who fear to make a buttonhole in a sweater, just sew the ribbon onto the outside of the sweater stitch so that the stitches do not show, and sew elastic (to keep the tie part of the sweater close to the body) on the under side from where the ribbon is attached on one side around your body to where the ribbon is attached on the opposite side. Then just slip through the elastic when you put on the sweater. The important point to remember is that the elastic only holds the front part close to your body. Paris '68

Bringing Up Baby

Hints Collected by Mrs. Dan Gerber, Mother of Five

HOW SOON THE SPOON?

Around 8 or 9 months (sometimes earlier, sometimes later) you'll notice an added interest in self-feeding on baby's part. Maybe he (or she) will put a little hand over yours as you're holding the cup or spoon. May even try to take the spoon away from you.

Even though it's more trouble, do let him try—to speed the glorious day when he can feed himself—by himself!

Self-feeding without spoons. If baby has enough teeth to do a little chewing and likes to pick things up, Gerber® Meat Sticks and Chicken Sticks are just the thing. Wonderful snacks—high in protein.

Protein by the spoonful. Know why baby's first year protein needs are so high? Because protein is a growth factor—and baby does more growing in the first year than in the next two put together. Protein also helps build and repair tissue—a very important nutrient for baby!

Gerber Meats provide baby with high quality protein. In the continuous flash-cooking process used to make these good meats, fat is kept to a minimum, natural juices retained. 9 strained, 7 junior varieties—textured for easy feeding.

Meaty Corn Muffins
Hearty treat for an older child. 1 jar and Gerber High Meat Dinner 1 package corn muffin mix. Prepare and bake according to package directions, substituting the high meat dinner for the egg. Gerber High Meat Dinners were developed to bring babies a meaty main dish. Three times the meat of regular vegetable-meat dinners!

More foods to grow on. Gerber Egg Yolks, Egg Yolks and Ham, High Protein Cereal and Cottage Cheese with Pineapple are good examples of Gerber variety in protein foods. Even Gerber Animal Shaped Cookies have twice the protein of ordinary cookies—plus B-vitamins in the icing. (Trust Gerber to think of nutrition—even in a cookie!)

Just for baby. Gerber offers 127 nourishing foods, created especially for baby. Gerber Baby Products, Box 33, Fremont, Michigan 49412.

Teen Allergy

A Teen Lovely writes: I break out in a rash when I use most cosmetics. Mother says I am probably allergic and that I will outgrow the trouble. Will I? I think mother is just trying to make me feel better. Exactly what is an allergy, anyhow?

The Answer: An allergy is a sensitivity to one or more substances that are harmless to most other people. It can be anything from strawberries to eggs, from pollen to medicine, from perfume to makeup.

It's a peculiarity of allergies that they can come on suddenly and sometimes go away quite as suddenly. A teen-ager with time on her side might hope that her cosmetic allergy will vanish. But there is no guarantee.

When you suspect that you are sensitive to cosmetics, the safe thing to do is have a doctor's check. There are several ailments that resemble allergies. If cosmetics prove to be the culprits, you should then ask your doctor about hypo-allergenic products.

Make no mistake, the hypo-allergenic are not medicated. Their Rx aims at deleting known allergens (allergy-causing substances). The products are clinically tested on persons allergic to the type of cosmetic under test. Before marketing the incidence of unfavorable reactions must be as little as 5 per cent. So, use brings an extra measure of safety with a large dip of pretty looks.

Leader of People to Free Us All

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Some day a leader of the people will arise to free us all from the bondage of the finesse. Today only good bridge players know that it often pays to refuse a finesse, but perhaps you can learn what they know from this week's articles.

West opens the jack of hearts, and the average debt-ridden man gets himself deeper in the hole by trying the hopeless finesse!

with the queen of hearts. East wins with the king of hearts and returns his singleton diamond, and now the fat is in the fire.

If South finesses, he loses to the king, and West can defeat the contract very easily by ruffing a diamond for East to ruff. South is just as badly off if he takes the ace of diamonds and leads a trump. West can take the ace of spades and the king of diamonds and then lead a diamond for East to ruff.

Hero Is Needed

The player who can look a finesse in the eye and say "no" makes for spades. Our hero begins by playing dummy's low heart at the first trick.

West continues with the ten of hearts, and dummy's ace wins. Declarer cashes the ace of clubs, ruffs a heart, ruffs a club in dummy and leads a trump.

West takes the ace of trumps and gets out by leading the king of clubs. South ruffs the club in dummy, draws one more trump with dummy's king and then leads a diamond to take a deep finesse with the nine. West wins with the ten of diamonds, but is then helpless. If West returns a diamond, South gets a free finesse; and if West returns anything else, dummy ruffs while South discards the queen of diamonds.

South makes his contract by refusing to dally with either red queen. Who but a bridge expert could display such courage?

Make-Up Tips for Bride Assure Day-Long Beauty

It's her wedding day — and of course the bride looks radiant as the first strains of Lohengrin ring out. But after looking so beautiful as she walks down the aisle — how to keep looking fresh and unwilted throughout the long wedding reception! It isn't easy to find the time or the place to "fix your face" when you're in a wedding gown and the center of attention.

Selecting the right makeup should present no problem for this year's bride. The sheer, transparent makeup that is top fashion now is ideal for achieving the natural look most brides want.

All-Day Makeup

A little extra care in applying makeup will help it last through the day. Foundation holds makeup in place, so be sure to use it. Then apply loose powder lavishly.

Press powder on with a clean cotton puff. Let it set for one minute, then dust off excess powder. Wring out another piece of cotton in cool water, until quite dry. Press moistened cotton lightly over the face. This routine helps to meld foundation and powder so makeup lasts longer.

Before putting on lipstick, apply foundation and powder over the lipline. Draw the lip outline with a lip brush, using a slightly deeper shade of lipstick than the one to be worn. Fill in the outline with the lighter shade. These techniques should get every bride through a long receiving line of hugs and kisses!

When there's time for a touch-up, make the most of it. Be sure to blot up excess oils before adding pressed powder. Have

NEW WAY TO BE SUDDENLY SLIM FOR EASTER

Los Angeles:—Are you a woman whose figure is on the good side but might look perfect? You'll be thrilled by the new easy way science has discovered for you to become Suddenly Slim and yet completely comfortable. If you're more than 15 pounds overweight, or your waistline is larger than 32 inches, then this idea is not for you. If your weight problem falls within this range, then you can realize a new, smoother figure today, without diet or exercise.

Suddenly Slim is an all-new kind of 4-oz. girdle constructed of science fibers. One startling innovation is the sheer nylon front panel. This is permanently stiffened by a science process and cannot give or sag. It's surrounded by a slimming action border. A featherstitched panel down each side of this girdle will contour your hips if they are a problem.

The girdle itself is of a "wonder" Lycra spandex blend. It's a new power net consisting of nylon, acetate and spandex. It is so comfortable, but has such slimming strength, it gives your figure everything that's possible with a foundation.

"Suddenly Slim," in both girdle and panty versions, is the peak achievement of the California designer-genius, Olga. They are available at H. C. Prange Co. and other stores with fashion spirit.

There's Going to be a Wedding, and little sister shares the excitement of the bride's beauty preparations for her day of days. With a few simple tricks the bride can assure herself that her make-up will last through the ceremony and the reception hugs and kisses.

Weeks Get More Exciting for Girls Anticipating Miss Appleton Pageant

March has been a busy month for the 12 girls who are competing in the Miss Appleton Pageant, and April's agenda, too, is full as the girls get closer to the April 20 "day of the judges." The pageant is sponsored each year by the Appleton Jaycees.

Friday night the contestants participated in a fish and fashion style show at Reetz's Supper Club, the first public event at which the young women were introduced as a group.

This week the girls are being interviewed by radio station WHBY, and at 7 p.m. Friday at Newmans they will meet the press and be interviewed by Don Smith, master of ceremonies for the pageant.

Eight Rehearsals

Rehearsals are not taken lightly. There are eight. On April 10, 11, 15 and 16 the aspirants meet at 7 p.m. at St. Mary School and April 17, 18 and 19 at Appleton High School-West.

First appearance before the judges is at a 10 a.m. brunch April 20 at the Left Guard Steakhouse. At this time the judges will interview the girls.

After the pageant, and the selection of Miss Appleton, 1968, there will be a post-pageant party for contestants, family and friends at the Left Guard.

During March the young contestants joined in a cosmetic demonstration, sat for portraits, and took part in the Bart Starr sports car benefit. On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday last week they appeared at Newmans for fittings and also on Thursday were interviewed by Bob Lloyd at the Valley National Bank Building. Friday, preceding the style show they kept hair appointments at Regis Exclusively. Mary Jane's, Mr. G's. Henry's, Prange's Fashion-Aire and Treasure Island.

Tickets for the pageant now are available from the contestants, Jaycee members or at Newmans. All tickets are on a reserve basis.

Family Garage Converted To Recreation Room

The generation gap is expanding home horizons. Family rooms are becoming more elegant, more formal and more often occupied by adults. So a new "out" has been found for the platter parties and guitar sessions younger members of the family thrive on.

The "out" is convenient and within the scope of parental supervision. It's the family garage.

Lloyd Henson, A.I.D., of New York City, has designed a teenage guest garage, with wall-to-wall carpeting, a wall of poster blowups of teen idols and symbols, and tiered bunk beds. The bunks are mattress and box springs ensembles covered in sizzling stripes and solids of party-proof canvas.

The carpeting is treated to be impervious to stains and especially developed for indoor-outdoor use. To dramatize this, the interior designer shows an automobile on the carpeted floor of the garage.

However, for actual use as a youth recreation area, the car and also to make room for should be temporarily removed teens.

The Family Garage has been converted into a teen recreation room, but still serves to cache the car and the kids. Asymmetrical bunks were built into one wall, along with a sink and cabinet unit. Another wall is covered with campy blowup posters of tene idols and symbols, and the floor is carpeted with a new indoor-outdoor carpeting that you can even park the car on because stains, including oil leaks, can be wiped away.

Trenny Robb State Princess For Festival

WASHINGTON (AP)—Twenty-year-old Trenny Robb, sister-in-law of the President's daughter, was crowned Saturday night as Wisconsin's 1968 Cherry Blossom Princess.

Miss Robb, who was a White House guest last weekend will represent her home state in the annual week-long national cherry blossom festival which begins Tuesday.

She received her crown from Republican Rep. Alvin E. O'Konski, dean of Wisconsin's congressional delegation, during a reception given by the Wisconsin State Society of Washington in the Rayburn House Office Building.

Trenny, whose full name is Marguerite Trenholm Robb, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Robb, Milwaukee. Her brother, Marine Capt. Charles S. Robb, married Lynda Bird Johnson, the President's elder daughter, in White House ceremonies last year.

Husband Abandons Sex Life; Accuses Wife of Cheating

BY ANN LANDERS
DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have written three letters to you in the last three days, and torn them all up. This one is going in the mail.
My husband and I have been married for 19 years. I should only count the first 10, because these last nine years shouldn't happen to a dog.
In 1958 Bill showed definite signs of slowing up sexually. In 1960 I decided something must are an insult and I'm a nervous wreck. What should I do?—A.B.U.

Dear A.B.U.: Tell Bill he must get professional help. His physical inadequacy is one thing, but the accusations suggest he is also mentally disturbed. The sooner he gets going the better. And good luck to both of you.
DEAR ANN LANDERS: Two years ago I married a widow with a 10-year-old daughter. The girl hated me from the beginning. I tried everything under the sun to win her over, but today she is meaner and more spiteful than ever.
Last January we had a little boy. The girl is so jealous of the baby I am afraid one day she may do him serious harm. Both my wife and I have attempted to give her more attention than ever before, but she refuses to let us be nice to her. The girl is a very poor eater, has nightmares, does miserably in school and cannot get along with other children. Please tell us how to deal with this child. — Defeated Dad
Dear Dad: I cannot tell you in one paragraph how to convert a disturbed youngster into a happy, well-adjusted human being. Obviously she has been mal-adjusted since early childhood. Call the Family Service Association and make an appointment to see a counselor. The girl's "mean-ness and spitefulness" are symptoms of a deeper problem.

Every day someone borrows my scissors, my stapler, my paste pot or my ruler. I don't mind this too much, but when they want to borrow my pen I see red. I am an old-fashioned girl who uses a fountain pen. In the last six months, I have lost three pens — and they were far from cheap. How do I say "no" without sounding like an old meanie or worse yet, a nut?—Fourth Floor
Dear Fourth: Since you're an old-fashioned girl here's an old-fashioned remedy: Keep the cap and hand the borrower the writing end. Nobody would put an uncovered fountain pen in a pocket or a purse. The cap will remind you to go get the rest should some lunkhead walk off with the part that writes.

Success Comes as Shock To Actress Carol White

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Carol White, 24, young British actress, is so unimpressed with her own success that her husband was moved to say to her at a New York theater opening:
"For heavens sakes, don't look now. You'll pass out. You're rubbing elbows with Paul Newman."
She was so shocked, she couldn't look up. You know what that could do to a girl, she says.
Steve McQueen could have the same effect on her. And Marlon Brando—well, there's no sense talking about it, she says, laughing. She likes he-man types.
"But I also like the way they put out as actors. They make you aware of them," says pretty blonde Carol.
Show Business Veteran
There is some talk that Carol, who is in a top-demand position right now, will make a movie in the United States. She is on her first trip to America and it was timed to coincide with a movie, "Poor Cow," in which she costars with Terrence Stamp.
She has been in show business 11 years, although she didn't get in by the usual formula—a trip to London and an agent, who sends you to producers and directors. At 11, Carol was at "stage school" and the agent there got her auditions, interviews, TV commercials and bit films. It is easier to get into the movies in Britain than it is in the United States, she says.
Popsinger Husband
In spite of having played a few naughty, controversial roles, Carol is a real homebody. She loves her husband, Michael King, 30, a pop singer in a "group" who travels with her and their two children, Sean 5, and Stevie 2, who is in her current movie.
Her husband's two brothers in the musical group enjoy a vacation occasionally—one writes stories, the other writes music, she says, so when they must travel, the group takes a respite. Michael has spent most of his leisure time in a Fifth Avenue toy store, ostensibly because "the children enjoy it," he says with a grin.

Won't Go 'London'
They've just bought a lovely house on the outskirts of London. But they won't go "London." In England, new wealth is not used that way, she explains. There is no rivalry to have the best in your new affluent set. You keep your old friends and you don't try to impress anyone.
She has made films with Peter Sellers and has one coming out soon with Orson Wells. She has a five-film contract and "options everywhere."
"My family are very cockney English," she says, revealing that she is at the point where it makes no difference to her. She once fretted that she had a cockney accent and was afraid to talk to people.
"I'm so happy that Americans are so pleasant. Everyone told me they would be difficult," she says.

Read the Label is only half the story of using medicines properly, according to the Council on Family Health. Follow directions, is the other half. If too much medicine is given, doctors call it a therapeutic overdose. This may be harmful to the patient. Less medicine than directed is called a therapeutic underdose. This may delay recovery. Measure doses carefully and give them on time, says the Council, sponsored as a public service by members of the drug industry.

Khe Sanh Center of Biggest Fight, Strategic and Military

Critics Insist Attempt to Guard Base Both Futile, Pointless

By JOHN T. WHEELER
Associated Press Writer
KHE SANH, Vietnam (AP) — This outpost at the northwest corner of South Vietnam has become the scene of the mightiest siege of the war—and the center of one of controversy about strategy, both by the Americans and their enemy.

There was a time when the Marines here played basketball, watched movies and wondered "What happened to Charlie?" Charlie, meaning the enemy, was laying the groundwork but still not ready for the siege.

Late last year Khe Sanh was so quiet that some Marines joked that it was the "demilitarized zone rest and relaxation center." Comrades only 40 miles to the east at Con Thien, Gio Linh and other Marine bases near the DMZ were subject to almost constant harassment and attack.

But secretly North Vietnam was moving tanks, hundreds of cannon, rockets and mortars toward this pleasant valley. Thousands of tons of ammunition and supplies were moved into position around the base or put in Laotian caches just outside Marine artillery range.

Attack on Jan. 20
The attack broke Jan. 20. The Marines said they were forewarned, but several hundred Marines were killed or wounded over the next few weeks because of the lack of adequate sandbagged and underground bunkers.

The isolated and surrounded base could be supplied only by air. With two enemy divisions against 5,500 Marines the odds were long, although the U.S. Command said American firepower in the form of jets and artillery would equalize the odds.

As the siege tightened and North Vietnamese troops began driving assault trenches toward the main base and airfield, the controversy over Khe Sanh grew apace with the intensity of the shelling that several times topped 1,000 rounds a day.

The official Marine position was and remains that the Leathernecks would win if any big battle came at Khe Sanh, and that the base and its hill positions were vital to protecting the western flank of the DMZ.

Casualty Estimates
One official estimate is that in the past two months American firepower has killed 2,000 North Vietnamese around Khe Sanh. American casualties have topped the 1,500 mark but most were wounded and most of these returned to duty after treatment or short stays in the hospital. A senior officer in the U.S. Command said Khe Sanh gave the allied side "on a silver platter" the chance to destroy a large number of the enemy. Fighting from their bunkers, the Marines enjoyed a vast battlefield advantage over North Vietnamese troops who would have to charge through the open, somehow get through thickets of barbed wire and then root out the Leathernecks fighting bunker by bunker.

Critics of the war and the U.S. Command's strategy said Khe Sanh was pointless and the danger that the Marine base might be overrun was out of proportion to any need to hold the western anchor to the DMZ. At the base Marines from top to bottom seemed relatively uninterested in the arguments. Most hate besides fear the constant artillery pounding. They look forward to a major infantry battle.

Pressure Slackened
Some Marine officers at Khe Sanh spoke openly during January of the possibility that at least part of the base and perhaps a few of the hills would be overrun. But in early March the steadily mounting pressure slackened.

Fewer troops were seen close to the base. Marine patrols wary after one brutal ambush only 800 yards from the base, began probing the terrain just in front of their lines again. Five battalion-size attacks had been beaten back. The base's confidence grew. Although military sources said withdrawal from Khe Sanh would prove almost prohibitive in terms of casualties, the possibility of reinforcement seemed to brighten. A further large build-up in allied troops had been carried out in the lowlands to the east—the allies had 160,000 troops in the northern two provinces.

Former Picture
Three years ago there were 10,000 South Vietnamese troops and a handful of Marines in the same area. There appear to be indications now that the North Vietnamese may forego a massive, division-size assault on Khe Sanh in favor of waiting out the Marines. So far, except for smallscale close-in patrolling, the Marines have been base-bound since mid-January.

There seems to be at least the possibility that the Marines, perhaps reinforced at heavy cost in casualties, may attempt to sweep the North Vietnamese away from the immediate Khe Sanh area.

Then the Leathernecks would be going through the open against heavily dug-in North Vietnamese positions and the tactical situation would be almost entirely reversed. The North Vietnamese artillery could pound the Marines in the open. The only Leatherneck edge would be air power. To some here, air power has proved somewhat disappointing in the past in knocking out the well dug-in and carefully camouflaged enemy artillery.

At Co Roc
A significant portion of the North Vietnamese artillery can outshoot the Marine guns and are safely out of U.S. artillery range in positions on Co Roc, a mountain just across the border in Laos.

Whatever the future holds, the danger will remain high for furious fighting that could mean the highest casualties of any battle in the war.

Marines are mindful that Khe Sanh first broke into the headlines one year ago during the vicious fighting for Hills 881 and 861 northwest of the base. Although there is much talk about the threat to Khe Sanh evaporating soon because of the imminent return of good weather, some officers recall that the 1967 fighting in this area began in late April and peaked in May. In largescale assaults the North Vietnamese are sadly hampered by monsoon weather just as the allies are. And any serious attack on Khe Sanh would be on a scale unseen in Vietnam since the French went down at Dien Bien Phu.

Appleton Optometrist Presents Awards at Driver Safety Event

Dr. William H. Gibson, Appleton Optometrist, presented safety awards Saturday at the Sixth, Annual State Conference for Driver and Traffic Safety Education at Wisconsin State University-Stevens Point.

The awards cited those who have contributed to Wisconsin's highway safety.

The awards program was initiated by the state optometric group in 1966 and is given annually.

Nearly 300 high school driver and traffic safety education teachers, school administrators and law enforcement officials attended the conference.

Large Waterways Described in Cruising Guide

MADISON — "Wisconsin Motor Boat Trails", a cruising guide to 30 of the state's larger waterways, has just been released by the Vacation and Travel Service of the Department of Natural Resources.

Waters described and mapped in the new 64-page booklet range from Lake Superior to Lake Geneva, and from the Mississippi-St. Croix to Green Bay. All are rivers or lakes and lake systems on which a skipper can wander for two days or more without going back over familiar water.

The material on each cruising area includes an outline map, descriptive text, and a chart of the available public and private launching and service facilities. Many of the readily accessible overnight accommodations, restaurants, fuel outlets, campgrounds and swimming beaches are also indicated.

Single copies of "Wisconsin Motor Boat Trails" are available at no charge from the Vacation and Travel Service at Box 450, Madison, Wis. 53701.

Pipeline Gets Nod of Plan Commission

Appleton's water expansion project — a pipeline to Lake Winnebago and addition to the filtration plant — was approved by the city plan commission this morning.

The commission's action was procedural but represented a requirement which must be met as the actual project nears reality.

Plan commissioners acted after receiving a resolution from the Appleton Water Commission which outlined the project and cost.

Actual estimated cost of the project is $4,250,909. Appleton has received a $1.5 million grant from the federal government, which means the city will float a $2.7 million revenue bond issue instead of having to pick up the entire tab.

Opens Friday Lawrence Setting of Symposium on Music

A music symposium for educators, a new project in Appleton, co-sponsored by three organizations, has been scheduled Friday and Saturday at the Lawrence Music-Drama Center.

"Implementing Contemporary Concepts to Upgrade Elementary Music Education" is the theme of the seminar, sponsored by the Appleton Public School Music Department, the Lawrence Conservatory of Music, and Holt, Rinehart and Winston, Inc.

More than 100 educators from throughout Wisconsin, Illinois and Minnesota are expected to attend.

Dr. Eunice Boardman, director of elementary music education, Wichita State University, and author of the new elementary music series, "Exploring Music," will be the guest speaker. She will present various topics through lecture, discussion and demonstration with a multi-age primary unit from the Appleton schools.

Topics Listed
Topics include pre-reading level materials, exploring music with multi-age groups and the music educator as an articulate resource for the classroom teachers.

Registrations will begin at 8 a.m. Friday with Dr. Boardman's lectures taking up the first day, followed at 3:30 p.m. by a concert by the Appleton YMCA Boys Choir, under the direction of Robert Penn, supervisor of music for Appleton Public Schools.

Saturday morning will begin with a discussion of the case for and against full-time music instruction by music specialists in the elementary school.

LaVahn Maesch, dean, Lawrence Conservatory of Music, and William Spears, superintendent of Appleton schools, will participate.

Primary Unit
A demonstration by the primary unit from Highlands Elementary School and Dr. Boardman and a summation and discussion will round out the symposium.

Dr. Boardman holds a bachelor of music education from Cornell College, a master of music education from Columbia University and a doctor's degree from the University of Illinois.

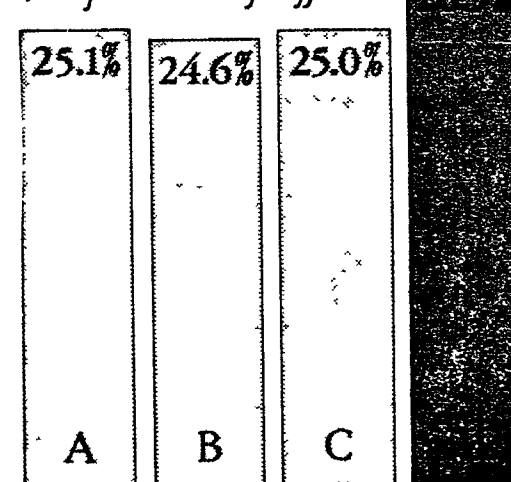

She is the director of the Institute for Music in Contemporary Education, Southwest region, and has had extensive experience in public school music as a teacher, clinician and adjudicator. She is considered one of the spokesmen for contemporary, innovative, quality music education.

Symposium coordinators include Penn, Karle J. Erickson, assistant professor of music, Lawrence University, and Delmar C. Meske, sales representative, Holt, Rinehart and Winston, Inc., publishers of one of Dr. Boardman's works.

Coffee is all we make. And we've found a way to make it better. A cup of coffee gets its flavor from what scientists call "available flavor solids." We have developed a new way of blending and roasting that gives our coffee more of these flavor solids than other leading coffees. As the chart shows—13% more, 14% more, even 15% more! You get a cup of coffee that has more flavor, more body, more strength. Even with cream and sugar the richer coffee flavor comes through. Enjoy some soon.

$55,000 Sought For Deaths in Highway Crash

Appleton Man Sues For Wife, Children Killed on U. S. 10

WAUPACA — Robert W. Littlefield, Appleton, whose wife and two children were killed in a car-truck crash Oct. 28, 1967, on U.S. 10 south of Weyauwega, is seeking a total of $55,000 for the deaths from William E. Hrebik, route 3, Waupaca, and the Hartford Accident and Indemnity Insurance Co., according to a civil suit filed Monday with Waupaca County Clerk of Courts Orin Stevenson.

As a special administrator for his wife's estate, Littlefield is seeking $5,000 for the injuries she suffered. As an individual he is seeking $26,000 for the death of his wife and $20,000 for the loss of his two children, a son, LaWayne, 7, and a daughter, Tami, 6. The suit also asks $2,000 for the couple's infant daughter Melissa who was left motherless plus $2,000 for the loss of the car Mrs. Littlefield was driving at the time of the accident.

Truck Stops
The crash occurred when the truck driven by Hrebik, who was traveling south, crossed the highway and stopped with the rear portion of the truck projecting onto the highway. The car driven by Mrs. Littlefield, who was traveling north, struck the right rear corner of the truck. All three victims were killed instantly in the crash.

In addition to the $55,000, Littlefield is also asking that Hrebik and the insurance company pay all court costs and attorney fees.

Valley Cities Get State Funds

Checks and Credit Allotments for Bridge Operations

Twelve cities in Fox Valley counties received $19,645 of the $384,840 allotted by the state for swing or lift bridge operations and the upkeep of "connecting streets" in Wisconsin communities.

The assistance — in the form of checks and credit allotments — was mailed to 105 cities and 10 villages in 56 counties. Checks totaling $130,000 are sent to six cities, including Oshkosh, for operating 14 swing and lift bridges after annual costs preapproved. Bridges must be on streets that connect state highway routes through the municipality.

Oshkosh received $14,070 for two such bridges. Funds allotted for connecting streets to communities produced $820 for communities in Calumet County; $7,600 in Outagamie County, $2,815 in Waupaca County, and $8,410 in Winnebago County.

City Allotments
Oshkosh topped communities in these counties, receiving $5,420. Appleton was second with $4,465.

Other cities' allotments were Chilton, $755; Kiel, $65; Little Chute, $1,075; New London, $40 in Outagamie County, and $555 in Waupaca; Kaukauna, $1,720; Clintonville, $1,105; Waupaca, $1,155; Menasha, $1,390, and Neenah, $1,600.

'People Should Decide' Bond Referendums, Unified School District Will Go to Council

Referendums for bond issues, and the possibility of reorganizing the Appleton Public School District, were tread upon lightly by the city council's finance committee Monday night.

However, there was only discussion and the matters will be brought before the entire council at a future committee of the whole meeting.

This is the recommendation going to the council Wednesday night in the wake of growing concern by city officials over the increase in bonding — especially for new school construction.

Milwaukeean Denies Rape

Cycle Gang Member Charged After Party Near Marion

WAUPACA — Joseph M. Bisenius, 20, Milwaukee, charged with raping a Milwaukee woman during a weekend drinking party Feb. 3 at an abandoned rural Marion cheese factory entered a plea of innocent to the charge and filed an affidavit of prejudice against County Judge Wendell McHenry, Monday, when he appeared in Waupaca County Court.

Bisenius is one of two men charged with the rape of the 25-year-old woman. The second man, Charles A. Johansen, 27, appeared in County Court for a preliminary hearing. Both men are free on bond.

At a preliminary hearing March 3, Bisenius was bound over to County Court for trial but had not entered a plea to the charge until Monday. Following his arrest, Bisenius declared himself indigent and Waupaca attorney Laurie Anderson was appointed his counsel. However on Monday Bisenius was represented in court by a Milwaukee attorney.

A trial date will not be set until a new judge has been named by the state court administrator.

Five Milwaukee men were arrested following the incident at the cheese factory. One man who shot the woman in the shoulder following the alleged rape was sentenced to prison after pleading guilty to a charge of injury by conduct regardless of human life, and three others were fined for disorderly conduct.

Golf Equipment Taken From Appleton Garage

John Lorenz, 1917 N. Division St., reported to Appleton police Monday that golf equipment, valued at about $195, was stolen from his garage between March 16 and March 29.

Lorenz said the equipment included a complete set of irons and two woods, a red golf bag, cart, golf shoes, and a jacket.

Appleton Voters Swarm to Polls

City Official Forecasts New Record

Appleton residents were flocking to the polls today in what appeared to be record numbers for a presidential primary.

The primary, along with a mayor's race, drew 5,800 persons to the city's 26 polling stations as of noon.

The total number registered to vote in Appleton is 23,508.

City Clerk Elden Broehm predicted that a record turnout for a presidential primary here was possible.

In April of 1960 the mid-day count during the presidential primary was 3,550. In April of 1964 the total reached 3,979.

Ideal Weather
Weather conditions were ideal to encourage the electorate. Temperatures were in the fifties and skies partly cloudy.

Today is the first time in recent years that more than one-fourth of the registered voters appeared at the polls by noon.

There were lines at most of the ward polling sites but they were moving smoothly.

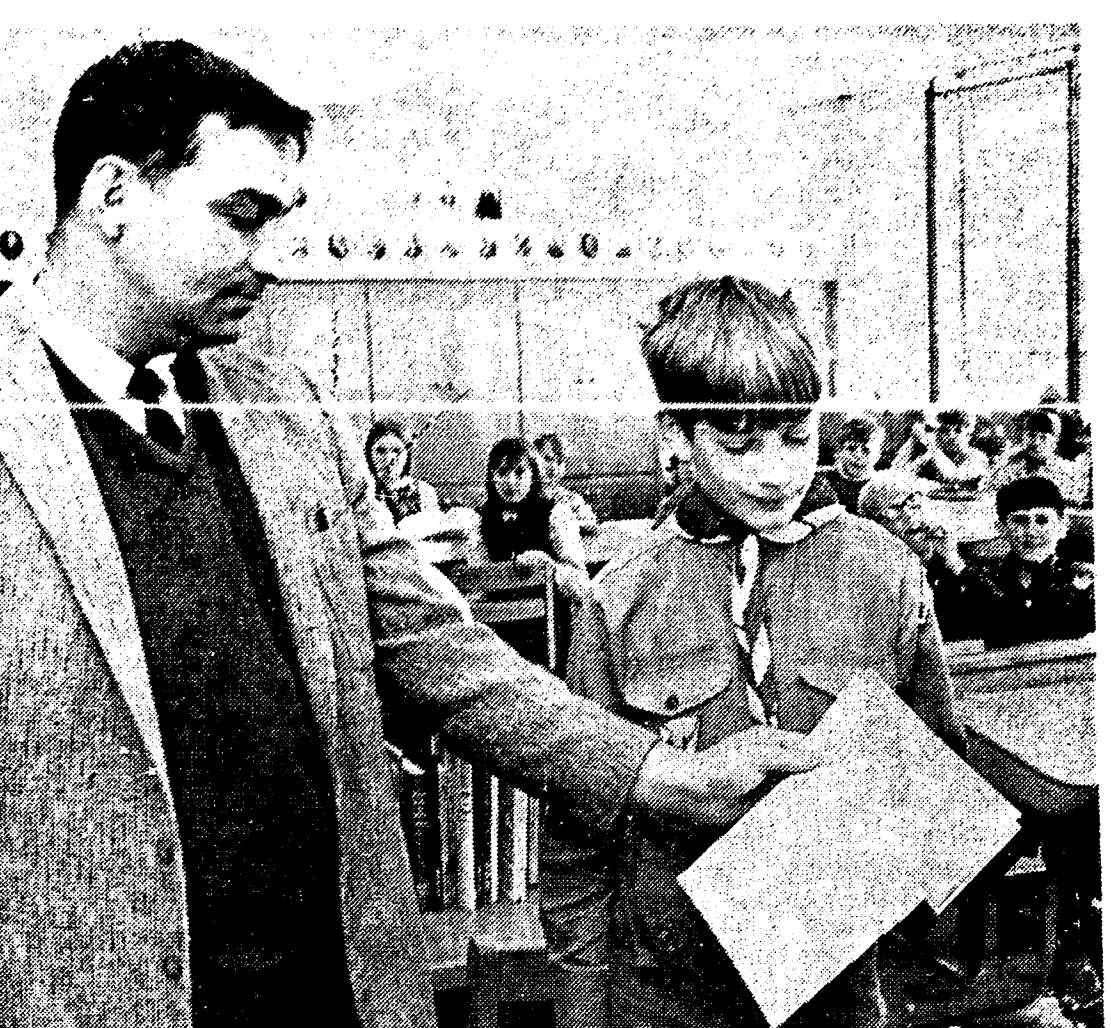

What was taking place in Appleton appeared to be a pattern throughout the state. Balloting was heavy in Milwaukee, Madison and other larger cities.

Oshkosh had 4,090 today, compared with 3,307 four years ago and 3,882 eight years ago.

Green Bay's noon total was 6,333, an unofficial record for noon in a primary.

Marquette reported 1,289.

Appleton May Join Lawsuit

LaFollette Requests City to be Party in Anti-Trust Action

The City of Appleton was requested today by Atty. Gen. Bronson LaFollette to become a party to an anti-trust action the state is pressing against several copper and brass product manufacturers.

Appleton is one of several cities, in addition to the State of Wisconsin, which hopes to recover damages from alleged price fixing.

Several months ago, LaFollette's office sent a questionnaire to the city seeking information on municipal copper and brass purchases in recent years.

Reply Indicates Damages
"Your reply indicated you have purchased copper and brass mill products and may have suffered damages as a result of the alleged conspiracy," LaFollette wrote city officials.

LaFollette said information received by his office in recent months indicated several Wisconsin cities made substantial purchases of the products in question. As a result it has intervened in a treble damage suit on behalf of the state and various units of Wisconsin government that made purchases.

Fourteen national firms are involved in the anti-trust action, according to the attorney general.

Appleton Detectives to Return Alleged Truck Thief From Milwaukee

Appleton detectives left for Milwaukee this morning to return an Appleton man who allegedly stole a van-type truck here last week.

Police here were notified Monday night that the 49-year-old man was taken into custody after obstructing an officer. Details of the incident were not immediately known.

The truck, stolen from Heid Music Co., Appleton, was recovered.

UW Center Voters Favor McCarthy

MENASHA — Sen. Eugene McCarthy far outdistanced his Democratic rivals in a mock election Monday at the University of Wisconsin Fox Valley Center.

The Minnesota Democrat received 134 votes while his major opponents — Sen. Robert Kennedy and President Johnson — received 34 and 28 respectively. Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey won six votes.

Former vice president Richard M. Nixon topped Republicans with 87 votes. Harold Stassen, former Minnesota governor, received 17 and Calif. Gov. Ronald Reagan, 1.

Some 307 of the school's 600 students cast ballots during the day-long election. Students could choose a Republican or Democratic ballot.

People Decide

The two southside aldermen said the people should be the ones to decide whether they want to have referendums whenever bond issues are being considered by the city.

In effect, they requested a referendum on whether there should be bond issue referendums.

"I would suggest that some figure be used in framing a question," Bethke said, citing $1 million as a possible amount.

Bethke said he would have the people vote on whether they wanted referendums rather than have the city council order them.

"In that way the people will be responsible directly for authorizing of future bond issues," Bethke declared.

Includes Schools
At one point Ald. Alvin E. Tews (5th), committee chairman, inquired whether it was the intent of the resolution to include schools. Bethke replied that it was.

"I think we should sit down then and discuss this with school officials," Tews said, "I would be opposed to having any referendums unless they were pegged to some fixed amount, if possible."

And then Tews said he did not think the council had enough information to act yet.

Bethke also injected that the city might "look seriously" to reorganizing its public school setup and have a unified school district rather than the present joint district.

Under the unified district, a

Private School Program 350 Students Enroll For Driver Training

Some 350 private school students who did not get dents are attending Appleton in the spring night classes, school district's drivers training Pickett said. He originally had estimated 300 for the night week, but 20 to 25 students were turned away for lack of enough driver trainers.

However, William Pickett, director of physical education, health and drivers training, indicated he is planning another classroom course to start July for 1969.

This three-week class will include 15 two-hour sessions. Students are required under the new state law to pass accredited drivers education programs, including classroom and behind-the-wheel experience, to qualify for a Wisconsin drivers license.

Board Picks Former Head of Consumer
Credit Department

MENASHA — L. I. Forman was named president of Bank of Menasha during a board of directors meeting Monday afternoon.

Moving up from manager and vice president of the consumer credit department, Forman today assumed the office left vacant by retiring bank president Harry Kosloske, who Monday ended a banking career of 47 years.

Forman, 41, has been with the Bank of Menasha for nine years, prior to which he worked for Northern Illinois Corporation.

Forman

Born and raised in Dixon, Ill., he is a graduate of Dixon High School and was in the Navy Air Corps. He received his bachelor of science degree in business administration from Tri-State College, Angola, Ind., was graduated from the School of Consumer Credit, Marquette University, and the School of Banking, University of Wisconsin.

He joined the Northern Illinois Corporation in December of 1958 and worked in management offices in Illinois and Wisconsin before coming to the Bank of Menasha in January of 1959, where he began as manager and vice president of the Consumer Credit Department.

Forman currently is a trustee of the First Congregational Church and a former chairman of the board. He is a member of the Neenah-Menasha Chamber of Commerce, Menasha Elks, Menasha Rotary Club, Menasha Businessmen's Association, Tri-State College Alumni Association, Badger Bankers, Wisconsin Installment Bankers Association, American Installment Bankers, and treasurer of the Neenah - Menasha Republican Club.

Married and the father of four boys, the Formans live at 636 Lake Crest Drive.

Menasha Man
Gets 3-Year Term

OSHKOSH — A Menasha man was sentenced to consecutive terms of up to three years of hard labor at the Wisconsin State Reformatory at Green Bay on charges of theft and forgery Tuesday morning before Winnebago County Court Branch 3 Judge James V. Sitter.

Norman F. Burmeister, 20, of 625 1/2 Appleton Road, had already pleaded guilty to the two felony charges along with another misdemeanor theft charge.

Prices on Seniors vary these days, as 22 Appleton High School-East students found out Thursday, as they were auctioned off, one by one, to be slaves for one day to underclassmen. A demure Sally Christensen, auctioned by Edward

Merten, student council president, brought $1. The whole event was for a worthy cause — a farewell dance to the first graduating class, sponsored by the student council and set for May 4. (Post-Crescent Photo)

New Decision Faced
On Neenah Senior High

NEENAH — After a three-month study of extended school year plans and finding only a flicker of support for any of them among the citizenry, the board of education will return to the fiscal control body on April 1 to request permission to hire an architect for the proposed senior high school.

Reviewing the past month's activities Monday, board president Donald Shepard said, "We made an extensive study of plans for extending the school year and how effective any one of them would be in delaying the construction of a second senior high school by 1971, as the council and town chairmen requested."

"These plans were presented in a public forum (which drew less than a dozen people. The question and plans were presented in three Fireside Chats and each board member has talked about it at every opportunity," he continued.

Little Evidence
"There appears to be little evidence of support for any one of the extended school year plans," he added. "The feeling of the special committee appointed to study the matter is that the 12 month school idea is impractical in every sense. Building costs are going up, nothing is going to change in the enrollment picture and we must act rapidly, or we will have to go to double sessions."

Lack of Snow,
Rain Reduces Dam Sluicing

NEENAH-MENASHA — Only one sluice gate is open in Neenah-Menasha this year due to the dry winter and absence of heavy showers so far this spring.

Last year three or four were open. However, a spokesman for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said this morning that the lake level was nearly up to the crest of the Menasha dam and was only slightly lower than last year at this time.

He said there was an agreement with the Conservation Department to bring the lake up to the dam crest by the first week in April.

Heavier sluicing is expected when the spring rains finally make their appearance.

Tentative date for opening navigation above the Menasha dam in the "Winnebago pool" is April 24, he said. Below the dam the tentative date is May 1.

Last winter was one of the sparsest in the history of the state for snowfall.

Strange Acquires Plant Site

MENASHA — John Strange company plans to use the facilities for expansion of its plant. Paper Co. has acquired the former Menasha Corp. factory, office and warehouse land and buildings adjoining the John Strange plant site.

Officials of Strange announced the transaction today.

L. A. Blume, vice president and treasurer, said the firm's immediate plans are to use the property for storage of raw materials and finished goods.

Eventually, said Blume, the

The announcement pointed out that the property might be that it is to the city's advantage, received considerable attention present site and continue to expand. The Menasha Corp. buildings have been mostly vacant since the firm relocated its local manufacturing operations in a new plant along U.S. 41 in the Town of Neenah two years ago, old factory site to a hotel and a move hastened by a 1964 fire in the plant in the city.

MENASHA — A hearing on the request by Menasha and Kaukauna electric utilities for permission to interconnect their electrical systems has been scheduled by the Public Service Commission for May 2 in Madison.

The PSC announced the hearings will be held at 9 a.m. in Wisconsin - Michigan Power Hill Farms State Office Building. At the same time, the PSC announced it has permitted the utilities to withdraw an earlier interconnection request.

Specifically, the PSC said, the hearings will take information from Wisconsin-Michigan, which on a request to build a 10 1/2 mile power line linking the two cities, and negotiations with the power line electric systems, at a

The regulatory agency also will hear facts on Kaukauna's request for permission to install a $1,750,000 gas turbine generator unit as part of the project.

The Kaukauna utility would pay for the turbine while the two utilities would split the cost of the interconnection line.

The new request is based on an agreement signed last week between officials of the two cities and their utilities and of Wisconsin - Michigan Power Co., which for years has been linked with Kaukauna's system and would remain tied to Kaukauna.

Hearings on the earlier plan ended after heavy questioning from Wisconsin-Michigan, which was not a party to that proposal, and negotiations with the power line electric systems, at a

There's Trouble Inside American Film Industry

Quarrels Over Billing Followed by Strife Between Editors, Directors

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Another dispute between film-making crafts came to light this month when the film editors blamed directors for "rapidly deteriorating" relations.

This came on the heels of continuing strife between the writers and directors guilds over billing.

The new complaint was voiced in the magazine Cine, in which Anthony A. Wollner editorialized:

"It is not uncommon nowadays to see directors standing over the shoulders of editors as they assemble or recut sequences in their viewing machines. Some editors steadfastly refuse to work in this fashion; others do so only because they fear loss of their positions if they don't comply. Frequently directors will prefer pliability over competence in an editor."

Destroy Creativity
"If this trend is permitted to continue, the editor of tomorrow will be void of incentive, creatively stifled, and in fact be no more than a technician. Erector set mentalities will then play at film-making in the cutting rooms."

What is a film editor? The work is self-defined: he's the man who edits film—puts together the exposed celluloid so it can be seen and enjoyed as a movie. He is traditionally called the cutter, but editors are not fond of the term.

Not a Cutter
"We don't like the word cutter because it doesn't tell what we do," says Tony Wollner, 47, a 20-year veteran of editing television shows such as "The Loretta Young Show" and "Custer."

"A cutter is a guy who puts film together; an editor can put film together to make it more powerful, amusing, dramatic or telling," adds Gene Fowler Jr.,

49, son of the late author, and editor of movies from "The Ox-Bow Incident" to "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World." He has also directed 400 television shows but has returned to editing because he finds it more creative.

The function of editing is as old as film itself; somebody had to put the movies together so they offered continuity. Originally this was a simple matter of shooting a story as it happened, then splicing the film together. A big advance came with "The Great Train Robbery" (1903), which created excitement by simultaneous action—cutting back and forth between events that were going on at the same time.

Early Directors
Early directors such as Edwin S. Porter and D.W. Griffith did their own editing. As they became more involved in the complexities of filming, they handed the duty over to their cameraman. During the 1920s, the position of film editor came into existence. Very often he was also the title-writer, the man who wrote the dialogue and descriptions flashed on screen during silent movies.

The film editor came into his own with talkies. Today there are 1,600 members of Hollywood's Film Editors Union; 200 belong to an honorary society, American Cinema Editors, which publishes Cine magazine.

"An editor has the power to make a film more effective by covering up the flaws in acting, directing and story," said Tony Wollner. He cited the example of "High Noon," an ordinary Western until the action was tightened by Elmo Williams, now a movie producer.

Best Unnoticed
"The best editing is unnoticed," remarked Fowler. "If the movie continues to engross the audience, then the editor has done a good job. The trouble nowadays is that too many pictures have obvious and jarring cuts that make the viewer conscious of the techniques that are being used. There was nothing new in 'Bonnie and Clyde.' It used techniques that had long ago been discovered, used and discarded."

Wollner underlined the editors' disgruntlement with directors:

"Too many directors nowadays don't trust editors. There is a growing trend for more and more directors to insist on supervising the cutting themselves. They consider their scenes too precious to be entrusted to someone else's hand. As a result, many just lie there. An editor would tighten those scenes up and make them play."

Lawrence Ensembles On Easter Program Over NBC Network

Three singing ensembles from Lawrence University will be heard on NBC's Voices of Easter series on April 9 from 10:05 to 10:30 p.m. Eastern Standard time.

The Lawrence Concert Choir, directed by Karle Erickson, will perform four works — "I am the Resurrection and the True Life," by Heinrich Schütz, "Misericordias Domini" by Francesco Durante, "Crucifixus," by Antonio Lotti, and "Lobet den Herrn, alle Heiden" by J. S. Bach. Erickson also directs the 20-voice Lawrence Singers in performance of the Russian Easter song "Alleluia! Christ is Risen" by A. Kopylov, and "O Sacred Head" arranged by F. Melius Christiansen.

The program concludes with the Amen Chorus from the Handel oratorio "The Messiah," recorded by the Lawrence Choral Society and Orchestra under the direction of LaVahn Maesch. The recording was made in performance in December, 1967 in Memorial Chapel.

According to the National Broadcasting Company, the program may not be heard in all sections of the country at the time it is transmitted from New York. It is often recorded by local stations and played later.

Christmas Thank You Arrives a Bit Late

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — With unseasonable temperatures in the 80s, a Christmas thank you note arrived in Annapolis from 9-year-old Timmy Gearhart of Donegal, Pa.

To Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Thompson, his Aunt and Uncle, he wrote: "I got your present and opened it. I looked at it in surprise. I needed a watch very bad. I had one but I lost it."

The thank-you, which arrived last week, was dated Dec. 27, 1967. A handwritten postscript noted: "I thought the letter was mailed but it wasn't."

Petula Clark Gives Grand Performance

BY TV SCOUT

7-5 (Channel 5) — Petula Clark is the name of a fine English singer and also the name of a special which is 99 per cent singing, both hers and that of her sole guest, Harry Belafonte. Miss Clark opens with "Who Am I?" and then proceeds to try to find the answer musically. Her producers define the show as Petula's "love affair" with her music and that's quite evident as she skips from "Downtown" to "Glocca Mora" to several of her own compositions being aired for the first time. Belafonte joins her for "On the Path to Glory" and solos several others including "H a m b o n e" and "If a Better Time's Coming." A feature of the show is Petula's tour of the Queen Mary, a nostalgic stroll through the regal ship now docked off Long Beach, Calif. (C)

9-9:30 (Channel 2) — CBS News combines its Campaign '68 with Who, What, When, Where, Why for an analysis of the Wisconsin Primary. Walter Cronkite anchors the program with reports from Eric Sevareid, Mike Wallace and David Schoumacher. (C)

6:30-7 (Channel 5) — Larry Storch is very funny playing a chimpanzee on I Dream of Jeannie. Tony has been working with a chimp in his space program and when he suggests that a man and not a monkey should be making the space shot, Jeannie blinks her eye and behold the man, or thing, or whatever it is. (C)

6:30-7:30 (Channels 11-9) — If Garrison's Gorillas faulted in any production aspect, it certainly was not lack of action. Even when the cast is standing still there is an element of quiet violence about them. And there's little standing still in this episode about a top security German prison camp. (C)

7:30-8:30 (Channels 11-9) — Malachi Throne and guest star Ida Lupino take over for Robert Wagner on It Takes a Thief when the nimble second story man gets bounced by a car and winds up in a hospital with a broken leg. (C)

7:30-8:30 (Channels 2-7) — Jack Jones stars on The Red Skelton Hour singing "Getting Sentimental Over You" and appearing with Clem Kadiddle-hopper, who needs love lessons so he can propose to Daisy June. Jack as the D.S. (Doctor of Smooching) offers the practical suggestions. Macdonald Carey, Alice Pearce, Adam West and Margaret Lindsey are featured. (C)

Pianist to Give Sonata Program

Piano sonatas by Scarlatti, Beethoven and Prokofiev will highlight the recital of conservatory senior Max Radloff at 8 p.m. Thursday at Lawrence University's Harper Hall.

Radloff, formerly from High Bridge and now a resident of Milan, Mo., is a piano student of Robert Below, associate professor of music. He is a candidate for a bachelor's degree in music with a major in piano.

Works on his program include: "Sonatas in G Major, K. 259 and 260," by Scarlatti; "Sonata in F-sharp Major, Op. 78," by Beethoven; "Impromptu in G-flat, Op. 90, No. 3," by Schubert; "Scherzo in C-sharp Minor, Op. 39," by Chopin; and "Sonata No. 6, Op. 82," by Prokofiev. The recital will be Radloff's second major program at Lawrence. He was heard in January, 1967, in a program featuring the J. S. Bach "French Suite No. 5" and Beethoven's "Sonata Op. 27, No. 1." He has also made several general student recital appearances. Radloff has sung with the Lawrence Men's Chorus, Concert Choir and Choral Society throughout his college years.

Housing Set For Milwaukee Core Families

State to Reinsure Mortgage Payments On Proposed Units

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — An unheralded program created by the 1967 Legislature will allow the start of construction on more than 100 homes for low income families in the heart of Milwaukee's inner core before the end of summer, state Insurance Commissioner Robert D. Haase said Monday.

Haase, reporting to Gov. Warren P. Knowles' cabinet of regulatory agency heads, said that the program which provides reinsurance on mortgages for home construction in areas of substandard housing, should allow for the start of more than 100 homes for low income families in a four block area of Milwaukee before the summer is over.

Invest Funds
The program provides that the state, under the administration of the insurance commissioner, will invest funds from the Wisconsin investment board for such uses.

The program reinsures home loans to assure lenders that their funds will be covered in the case of loss or default.

The state offers reinsurance on 80 per cent of the loan; the initial 20 per cent is covered by mortgage guarantee firms under the act.

Knowles' Rebuttal
The comments came as Knowles reacted to criticisms from officials of the Federal Housing Administration that the state has failed to act to help low income, inner city families find decent housing in Wisconsin.

Knowles charged that the state has taken the lead in such programs, and that the federal programs have not, in the past six years, made a single such loan in core area residents for the construction of homes.

Haase said that the state program has not sought publicity because he hopes to incorporate the advice of inner city residents before developing the final outlines of the plan.

"False Hopes"
"The people are not looking for gimmicks, they are not looking for catch names — they are looking for houses," he said.

Knowles said of the federal programs that "false hopes and false promises have gotten us into a lot of trouble in the past." The state is not going to make the same mistake, he suggested.

Under the program, both single and multi-family houses can be constructed and reinsured.

Appleton Man Fined For Public Intoxication

Joseph Piresler, 75, 120½ E. Pacific St., was fined $10 and costs or five days in jail this morning after he pleaded guilty in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 to a public intoxication charge brought by Appleton police who arrested the man at Oneida and Washington streets Monday evening.

This Will be the Future Home of Outagamie Equity Co-op at Appleton when its $50,000 expansion program is completed this summer. The structure is located on a 10.9 acre tract on W. Wisconsin Avenue.

New Buildings Constructed

Outagamie Equity Relocates In $500,000 Expansion Program

The Outagamie Equity Cooperative is undergoing a $500,000 expansion program.

After 48 years of operations at 320 N. Division St., the cooperative sold this property and in turn purchased a 10.9 acre tract of land on West Wisconsin Avenue, three-tenths of a mile west of County Trunk A on U.S. 10.

Under construction at the new location is a large modern concrete block structure which will house the cooperative and credit union stores.

Record Vote Seen as Lines Form at Polls

Appleton polling stations will close at 8 p.m.

At Madison, a hotbed of Vietnam war protests, election officials thought the turnout indicated that up to 80 per cent of 76,900 eligible voters would punch out their choices on the voting machines.

If past records can be an indication, Appleton will easily achieve its 70 to 73 per cent presidential primary turnout.

The 17th and 19th wards had passed the 400-vote mark at noon, while ballots cast in the 2nd, 7th, 8th, 12th, 13th, 14th, and 18th Wards exceeded 300.

The vote totals at noon:

2 Barkeepers Fined $75 in Calumet Court

CHILTON — Two tavern keepers were fined a total of $75 when they appeared Monday before Judge D. H. Seborra in Calumet County Court.

Carlton Morose, operator of Carl and Jeans Bar, Stockbridge, was fined $25 for remaining open after hours. He was arrested by county police March 16.

John Krueger, operator of the Green Room in the Town of Rantoul, was fined $50 for permitting minors to loiter on the premises. Krueger was arrested by county deputies March 15.

Brikowski predicted. The second main building is planned for completion by July.

Contemplate Sale
Brikowski said that the cooperative is contemplating the sale in part or totality of its property on 1910 W. Wisconsin Ave. where gasoline and coal deliveries are now being conducted. Eventually, the latter portion of the business will also relocate to the new property.

Services presently provided for the over 5,000 stockholders are two service stations, one in Appleton and another in Neenah; fuel oil, gasoline and coal deliveries from the 1910 W. Wisconsin location, and John Deere machinery, hardware, appliances, feed, seed, and fertilizer at 320 N. Division St.

On Jan. 1, 1964, the Appleton Cooperative Association merged with the Outagamie Equity Cooperative Exchange to become the present Outagamie Equity Co-op.

Grocery Stores
In addition to a fuel yard and two service stations, the cooperative has operated grocery stores in Neenah and Appleton.

In the early 1920's the Outagamie Equity Cooperative Exchange was organized by farmers to provide them with goods and services they needed. Because of duplicating services and employees, the groups voted to merge.

Cooperative President S. F. Darling announced the most recent acquisition at the 1967 annual meeting. The 10.9 acres front on West Wisconsin and Elberg Avenue.

board would run the school system and be responsible for setting the school tax rate — being directly answerable to all the electors in the district.

Under a unified school district setup, according to Bethke and information supplied aldermen by the Wisconsin Public Expenditure Survey, every building program would be subject to a referendum vote.

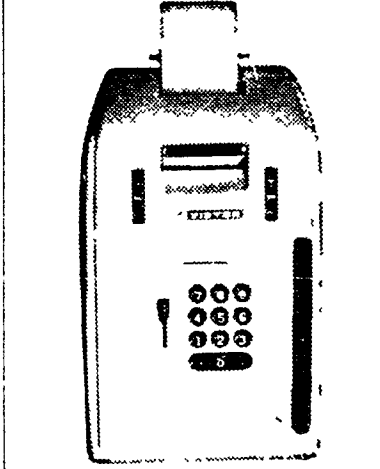

"They (the district school board) would have to answer to the public on spending and not hide behind the city council as in the past," Bethke declared.

The finance committee also suggested that Supt. of Schools William Spears attend the council meeting when the question of school district reorganization is discussed.

Fund Drive Started

Americanos March Well But Need Truck

Members of Appleton's Americanos and Torros Drum and Bugle Corps are trying to become as adept at fund raising as they are at their musical avocation.

The goal of their drive is the purchase of a new truck to transport the group's equipment for performances outside the city.

Organized in 1936 as an activity for sons of American Legionnaires, the Americanos later opened their ranks to all interested youths between the ages of 14 and 21.

In 1963 the Torros Corps was formed as a training group for the senior unit. It is open to boys 9 to 14 years of age. At present there are about 50 members in each corps.

Sold for Scrap
The equipment truck which the groups have been using for the past three years was already dilapidated when purchased and recently had to be sold for scrap, said William Schultz, 616 S. Locust St., supervisor of the groups and a member of the corps from 1949 to 1958.

Appleton residents may remember the vehicle from last April's Loyalty Day parade on College Avenue, in which the group performed.

Members of the corps recently added $80 toward the purchase of the truck through a toothbrush sale. They are presently at work on a candy sale to raise money both for the new vehicle and for musical equipment.

In addition, their leaders are canvassing local firms for contributions to the truck fund. Their efforts have been somewhat handicapped, Schultz said, by a lack of knowledge about the groups' work on the part of potential contributors.

Man Fined $25 For Taking Boots

Jordan W. Knaack, 21, route 3, Appleton, was fined $25 and costs or 20 days in jail and ordered to make restitution this morning after he pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing a pair of cowboy boots Monday evening from K mart.

A K mart official said that Knaack took the boots and left his old shoes under a power lawn mower in the garden department of the W. College Avenue store. He was stopped as he left the store. Outagamie County sheriff's investigators were summoned.

Judge Raymond Dohr ordered Knaack to pay $14.95 for the boots.

Russell Kirk in Lecture Program

Russell Kirk, writer, educator, syndicated columnist and a leading spokesman for American conservatism, will lecture at 8:15 p.m. Thursday in Fine Arts Hall, St. Norbert College.

"American Conservatives in the Middle of the Journey" will be his topic and is part of a series sponsored by the college's speakers forum.

The author of 15 books, including a novel and a collection of short stories, is best known for his book, "The Conservative Mind," published in 1953. He has a column "To the Point," running in more than 100 papers.

Since 1956 he has been research professor of politics at C. W. Post College, Long Island University.

Appleton this October.

In addition to several local performances this year, the corps is planning engagements in other parts of the state as well as Upper Michigan and Ohio.

During the winter months, practice sessions are held once a week and two or three times a week during summer vacation.

The groups belong to the Badgerland Drum and Bugle Americans Parent Association Corps Association, which will hold its annual meeting in April Bank.

Your Money's Worth

1967 Profitable Year For Most Investors

BY SYLVIA PORTER

You're in the overwhelming majority of America's 24,000,000 stockholders if you made money in the stock market last year; nine out of 10 investors did. And you almost surely chalked up a profit if you were an "active" investor: 97 per cent of those who made 25 or more trades in 1967 had gains.

If you were an average investor, you boosted the value of your portfolio about 18 per cent, compared with a rise of 15.2 per cent in the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks and of 23 per cent in the New York Stock Exchange's comprehensive index of listed stocks. If you were one of the estimated 3,600,000 active investors, though, the odds are your portfolio rose as much as 27 per cent, while if you were among the close to 12,000,000 comparatively inactive investors, the increase in your stocks was around 15 per cent.

Porter

tor, you boosted the value of your portfolio about 18 per cent, compared with a rise of 15.2 per cent in the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks and of 23 per cent in the New York Stock Exchange's comprehensive index of listed stocks. If you were one of the estimated 3,600,000 active investors, though, the odds are your portfolio rose as much as 27 per cent, while if you were among the close to 12,000,000 comparatively inactive investors, the increase in your stocks was around 15 per cent.

Declining Stocks

If you were the unlucky one out of 10 who lost money, there's a good chance you lost it in American Telephone. Other stocks in which you well might have lost were: TWA, Pan Am, General Motors, Nationwide Corp., U.S. Steel, Airlift International, American Airlines, Continental Airlines and Montgomery Ward.

But if you chalked up gains, you could have owned any of a long list. IBM could have been your big money-maker. Or Sperry Rand, Control Data, Occidental Petroleum, Chrysler, Raytheon, Burroughs, Ling-Temco, Avco and Avnet.

As an active investor, you probably support a tax increase because you believe it would help curb inflation and reduce the federal budget deficit: the big economic problems which you see facing the nation are military spending, inflation, the balance of payments deficit and government spending. Despite your worries, however, most of you expect the stock market to be higher at the end of 1968 than at the end of 1967.

Brokers' Survey

Recently, Paine, Webber, Jackson and Curtis, among the top half-dozen stock firms in the country with 60 branches across the nation, obtained answers from 2,140 of its customers to an exhaustive questionnaire designed to reveal customer activities and attitudes. The data was then scientifically weighted to make it applicable to the shareholder population as a whole. I have obtained a copy of the survey and I suspect that it could be in some ways a more realistic picture of you and me, as investors, than even the New York Stock Exchange census. The reason is that this is a profile of the individual who actually maintains a brokerage account, and thus, it is not distorted by the investor, big or little, who rarely makes a trade.

What are some implications of the findings?

A first point which leaps out of the statistics is that in last year's extremely selective market, it did not pay to "sit tight" — especially with such "sit tight" favorites as American Telephone. This message apparently has penetrated. The survey indicates that those who were generally inactive in 1967 plan to be more active in 1968.

A hidden implication of this point is in turn that Wall Street's "back office" crisis, too heavy a volume of trading and paperwork for current facilities, will continue, for Wall Street has not yet found a way to handle the mounting volume of transactions.

Blue Chips Down

Steam From Motor Mistaken for Smoke

What was reported as a car fire in a garage Sunday afternoon turned out to be nothing more than steam coming from a hot engine.

Appleton firemen were summoned to the home of Mrs. Anna Dengel, 419 W. Prospect Ave., about 2:30 p.m., when a car was reported on fire in her garage. Firemen found that a heater hose had come loose, spilling water on the hot engine.

Firemen were called to the Peter VanHeertum home, 821 W. Frances St., at 6:05 a.m. today when a furnace motor overheated. At 11:15 a.m. Sunday, firemen went to the Clement Geenen home, 628 N. Story St., when a small fire broke out in an electrical box. There was some smoke in the home.

MILWAUKEE — Mortgage Guaranty Insurance Corporation (MGIC) expects first quarter earnings this year to increase 40 per cent, Max H. Karl, president, told shareholders at the annual meeting Monday.

The firm also plans to form a holding company, MGIC Investment Corporation, he said.

Karl said in the first quarter last year, MGIC earned 47 cents per share, adjusted to include operations of its insurance company acquired in December.

The $335 million in insurance applications represents the largest first quarter in the firm's history, he said, and 39 per cent over the year before.

7 Lettermen Back; Wrightstown Season-Opening Foe April 9

In the spring of 1967, Kimberly baseball coach Jim Nirschl watched his Papermakers suffer through a 2-12 season, including an 0-7 record in the Mid-Eastern Conference. But now Nirschl, who begins his 18th year as the Kimberly pilot, can look for improvement in 1968 with the return of seven lettermen starters from last year's inexperienced squad. The team will still be young, with only three seniors on the roster, but all are likely to find regular spots again. The remaining letter winners include two juniors and two sophomores. A total of 29 prospects have turned out to date. Depth on the pitching staff would appear to be the club's strongest point, with the likes of lettermen seniors Jeff Hass and Gordon Smith, plus sophomore dandy Ralph Kalies on hand. Hitting will be the big question mark as it was in '67. Other Returnees The other returning monogram winners include third baseman Bill Kaufman, shortstop Dan Blajeski, and second basemen Bill Kroner and Jeff Erbrecht. Kroner is a senior, Kaufman and Erbrecht juniors, and Blajeski is a sophomore. Nirschl lists seven underclassmen as having good shots at winning positions on the team. They are juniors John Johnson (catcher), John Nabbeffeld (infield), Matt Nirschl (outfield) and sophs Jay Wyngaard (first base), Jim Andres (first base), and Gary Wyngaard (infield). Also vying for berths are Tom Subert, Tim Gaffney, Pete Miller, Dan Milan, Francis Wyngaard, Guy Hietpas, Steve Schultz, Pat Wallace, Mike Erbrecht, Chuck Janson, Jeff Derks, Steve Packet, Dan Lends, Hank Kokke, Dan Vanden Heuvel and Steve Bunnaw. Kimberly opens its season Tuesday, April 9, playing host to Wrightstown. The Papermakers' first conference game will also be at home against Neenah April 23.

'67 Dissension Denied Grant's Comments Will Unify Twins, Kaat Says

By LEW FERGUSON
ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Pitcher Jim Kaat thinks statements attributed to former teammate Jim "Mudcat" Grant about dissension on Minnesota will serve to unify the Twins in the 1968 baseball season. Kaat, who Monday wound up three days of X-ray treatments in the Twin Cities of his ailing left arm, said of Grant's comments which have appeared in several national publications: "I think it will have a unifying effect, if anything, to prove this wasn't the problem with our ball club last year." Kaat hinted that Grant had not endeared himself to his ex-teammates by his comments. "When we played the Dodgers in an exhibition game," Kaat related, "everybody was very friendly to Zoilo Versalles. But nobody had any conversation with Grant." Versalles had been traded along with Grant to Los Angeles. Well - Liked Kaat also said the Minnesota pitching staff is elated to have ex-Dodger John Roseboro doing the Twins' catching now. "The pitchers all really like Roseboro," Kaat said. "They all tell me that when I get well I've got a real treat coming in pitching to him." Kaat pronounced himself satisfied all possible is being done to speed the recovery of his arm and said he will rejoin the Twins Thursday in Houston, where Minnesota plays the Astros a four-game exhibition series Thursday through Sunday. "I think this is just something that will take more time than we thought," Kaat said of the process of treating his arm. "With this X-ray treatment, it could make great progress in a short time. We have to break this scar tissue down and stretch the arm out." Kaat said the injury was "a tear to the muscle, and there is nothing you can do for a tear but let it heal." He said the original muscle tear suffered in Boston last Sept. 30 apparently healed during the off-season, but he re-tore it in the first intersquad game in which he pitched this spring in Orlando, Fla. Now, the problem is breaking down the scar tissue, which irritates the arm's main nerve and is especially sensitive whenever Kaat tries to throw breaking pitches. Kaat said no surgery is contemplated because his doctors do not believe surgery can correct the situation.

Gibson Stiffles Chisox for 7 Innings, Gains 3-1 Victory

Colavito Goat as Cubs Outlast Dodgers, 9-8; Reichardt Stars In California Win Over Indians

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
You can start the baseball season any time, Mr. Commissioner. Bob Gibson's ready. The Old St. Louis Cardinals' World Series hero of last year pitched seven overpowering innings against the Chicago White Sox in an exhibition game Monday. His only regret was that Manager Red Schoendienst didn't let him finish. "I felt fine and could have gone nine innings," the big right-hander said after the Cardinals' 3-1 victory. Gibson gave up only five hits and one walk while striking out four. In addition, he retired the last 13 batters he faced. In other games Monday, Boston beat Atlanta 1-0, Houston edged Oakland 2-1, the New York Yankees shaded Detroit 6-5, Pittsburgh nipped the New York Mets 4-3, Philadelphia crushed Minnesota 8-1, Baltimore took Washington 5-2, the Chicago Cubs outslug Los Angeles 9-8 and California nosed out Cleveland 10-9.

ble for the Orioles. Frank Coggins had two triples for the Senators in their losing cause. The Cubs scored five runs in the ninth, then survived a four-run Dodger ninth to win by a run. Don Kessinger's homer snapped a 4-4 tie, then an error by Rocky Colavito let in the final two runs of the inning. Rick Reichardt had three runs batted in during the last two innings to lead California to a comeback win over the Indians. The Angels pounded out 17 hits, 14 off starter Sam McDowell.

Will Hurl Opener Gibson, who won three World Series games over the Red Sox last year, has been named by Schoendienst to open the season for the Cardinals next week against Atlanta. Mike Shannon provided the muscle in the St. Louis attack, with a homer and a double among his four hits, raising his Spring batting average to .390. The Red Sox also got a strong pitching performance from Gary Waslewski, who set down the Braves on seven hits in the seven innings he worked. Reggie Smith, who had three hits for Boston, drove in the only run of the game in the first inning with a single. Bob Aspromonte scored the winning run for Houston, coming in on Hector Torres' squeeze bunt with one out in the ninth after he had doubled and moved to third on the throw to second. Steve Witaker's two solo home runs off Denny McLain beat the Tigers for the Yankees. Fritz Peterson was the winning pitcher despite giving up homers to Ray Oyler and Jim Price.

Experience is the best teacher and the New York Knicks and Detroit Pistons received a lesson Monday night from the aging Philadelphia 76ers and Boston Celtics. Of course, the lesson was poorly taken because the 76ers eliminated the Knicks from the National Basketball Association playoffs and the Celtics did the same to the Pistons.

Could Make $70,000 Mrs. King Among Five To Sign Pacts With National Tennis Loop

By JACK STEVENSON
INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — "I don't think people look on a sport these days unless money is involved," says Billie Jean King, the tennis queen who could make $70,000 playing the game during the next year. Mrs. King, Ann Haydon Jones of England, Francoise Durr of France and little Rosemary Casals of San Francisco signed contracts Monday to play with the new National Tennis League. Also joining the pros was Australian Roy Emerson who could earn up to $100,000 for each of the next two years. Contracts for the five were announced by George MacCall, former United States Davis Cup captain who is now president of the pro group. Five players previously under contract are Rod Laver, Ken Rosewall and Fred Stolle, all of Australia, Andres Gimeno of Spain and former U.S. champion Pancho Gonzales.

Debuts April 7 The NTL makes its United States debut in a tournament at the Forum here, April 7, 9 and 10 with much of the interest centered on the gals. Billie Jean believes the entry of the women will bring more interest in tennis among younger girls. "It should create motivation and more purpose," she declared. "In this country, if you're a pro—you're somebody. If you're an amateur, you're nobody." She also looks forward to open tournaments such as those in England this year ... at Bournemouth later this month and at Wimbledon in July. MacCall did not divulge the exact money involved in the contracts and the earnings ultimately will reflect how the players do in the tournaments. He did say Mrs. King was guaranteed between $40,000 and $50,000 with the opportunity to earn up to $70,000. The other women are expected to earn in the $25,000 vicinity and Emerson, with a guarantee of about $75,000, could earn up to $100,000 for each year of his two-year pact.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW
By John Behnke

What are the most games a pitcher ever won in big league baseball in one season? ... The record was set by Charles Radbourn in the National League in 1884 ... That season Radbourn was not just a 20-game winner or a 30-game winner or even a 40-game winner ... He won the unbelievable total of 60 games in that one year!

Can you imagine seeing a game in which almost every member of one team had the same name? ... This happened in a soccer game in England when a team from India played there ... The name of Singh is fairly common in India and on this soccer team, 10 of the 11 starting players were named Singh!

Did you ever wonder which organized sports are the oldest in the world? ... To find out, someone researched to see what sports were contested in the first Olympic games which were held many centuries before the birth of Christ ... The first organized sports in the recorded history of the Olympics were foot racing, boxing and wrestling.

Two Women Exceed 600 Bowling Level

Evelyn Myers Smashes 623, And 'Theo' Brzezinski Posts 608 National Honor Series

Two women smashed national honor counts on Fox Cities lanes Monday night, and another came close to the magic 600 barrier, with a 595.

Evelyn Myers whacked a 623 in the Queen's Classic League, at Sabre Lanes. "Theo" Brzezinski fired a 608 series in the Strikes and Spares League at Lakewood Lanes.

Mary Ann Beyer fell just five pins short of the 600 level in the Kitchen Cheaters League at Hahn's Lanes.

For Evie Myers, last night's national set was her second in as many days and her third of the season. Sunday, she had socked a 636, at R and R Lanes, Black Creek, while competing in the Central Fox Valley Women's Association tournament.

Evelyn's games last night included a 234 and a 211. She has had at least 19 national honor sets in her career. She bowls two nights a week in women's leagues and also competes in a couples' league.

Neenah's Theo Brzezinski, a teacher in the Appleton school system, smacked lines of 190, 216 and 202 enroute to her big series. It was the fifth women's national set of the season at Lakewood.

Mary Ann Beyer's 595 included lines of 215 and 193.

Lois Kuse slammed a 577 series to pace the Sabre Bowling League. Her best game — 213 — was also tops for the league.

Jockey Hurt at Akron Track

Four Horses Fall In Collision; One Dies of Broken Neck

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A jockey was injured seriously and one horse killed Monday when four horses went down in the ninth race at Ascot Park.

Danny Weiler, one of the top jockeys at Ascot, suffered possible head injuries. He was rushed from the track to St. Thomas Hospital in Akron and reported in serious condition.

A track spokesman said movie films of the race show he may have been kicked in the head by one of the horses which fell.

The incident occurred on the final turn of a seven furlong race. Weiler, aboard Jolly Cork, went down first. Pirate King, with Guy Smithson aboard, went down over Jolly Cork and Edward N., ridden by Raul Sterling, toppled over the other two.

Edward N. then got up, turned the opposite way on the track and ran into Cram Day. Officials said Cram Day died on the track, possibly of a broken neck. Jockey Pete Dalgo was thrown to the ground.

Smithson and Sterling escaped with minor injuries. Dalgo was taken to the hospital with a sprained left knee and later released.

its semifinal against Chicago Sunday night.

Everyone expected the 76ers and Celtics to clash again, but there were some doubts when the upstart Knicks and Pistons held their own early and stood 2-2 in games. Then age—and talent—began to come across.

"From my experience, the older veterans, tried and true, are the ones that perform best in the crucial games," said 76er Coach Alex Hannum after watching nine-year veteran Wilt Chamberlain and 10-year veteran Hal Greer take apart the Knicks in the second half Monday night.

"Wilt was sick as a dog the other day and Greer had a bad foot, but when it came right to it, they were ready," said Hannum.

Greer hammered home 35 points, including 22 in the second half when the 76ers blew open a tight contest. He had 13 in the third quarter which began with Philadelphia behind 57-56 and ended with the 76ers ahead 86-76.

Wilt dominated the middle in the final half, blocking shots and grabbing rebounds, and finished with 25 points and 27 rebounds.

The Knicks, as in earlier games, jumped to a big early lead, 17-4 and 31-17, but in the end, their own pressing defense wore them down in only their second playoff appearance in nine years.

"They put pressure on the guards, the same way Boston does, but the Celtics are more successful because they have Bill Russell to back them up. Walt Bellamy did a great job for New York, but he's no Russell on defense," Hannum said.

"People say Boston is getting older, but the older veterans get new life in the playoffs."

Russell did against Detroit, scoring 15 points and hauling in 23 rebounds. And John Havlicek, another playoff-wise veteran, hit 31 points to help offset 44 points by Dave Bing of the Pistons, who made the playoffs for the first time in five years.

Boston, in the division finals for the 11th straight year, took a 57-49 halftime lead, but had some anxious moments in the second half when Bing hit a club record 37 points. His 16 straight points got the Pistons within six, but no closer.

Lonborg Will Start Hurling From Mound

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) —Ailing Jim Lonborg's recuperation is right on schedule in his determined bid to be back pitching for the Boston Red Sox by May 15.

Lonborg, who plays 27 holes of golf daily, gets in plenty of swimming and works with weights as part of his rehabilitation, plans to throw from the mound Wednesday for the first time this spring.

The big right-hander, who suffered a serious left knee injury in a skiing accident last December, will pitch lightly before the Red Sox wind up their Winter Haven exhibition schedule against the Oakland Athletics.

When the Red Sox break camp Friday, Lonborg will head for the Louisville training site at Deland, Fla., to continue his special therapy program and workouts until the club reaches Boston in mid-April.

Vitriolic Will Miss Derby

NEW YORK (AP) — Ogden Phipps and the Wheatley Stable apparently will have to wait another year for a victory in the Kentucky Derby.

Phipps, owner-breeder of Vitriolic, said Monday that his 2-year-old champion of 1967 probably is out for the year with calcium deposits on his left knee.

The big son of Bold Ruler-Sarcastic, one of the winter book favorites for the Derby, also will miss the other two races of the Triple Crown—the Preakness and Belmont Stakes. This marks the fourth straight year that the Wheatley Stable had a 2-year-old champion only to be disappointed for the Derby.

Pick Thompson Most Valuable

Luchini, Brunkhorst Also Get Awards At MU Banquet

MILWAUKEE (AP) — George Thompson, Marquette University's record-breaking basketball standout last season, received the Warriors' most valuable player award Monday night.

The annual awards banquet included citations for senior Brad Luchini, who got the team's Tip-Off Club trophy, and senior Brian Brunkhorst, who got a special plaque from the club.

Coach Al McGuire called Thompson "the finest forward in the country" for a player limited to 6-foot-2. "He was unjustly kept off the Olympic team."

"If he can knock off eight pounds," McGuire added, "he should become the greatest thing Marquette has ever seen next season."

Thompson scored 664 points last season, a school record.

Luchini was cited as the squad's best man last season at the free throw line, scoring 86.3 per cent of his charity shots.

Brunkhorst's citation also reflected his free throw accuracy — 82.6 per cent.

The Pill Couples loop at Sabre Lanes produced four honor scores. Bill Brandt topped the list with a 561 series. Ginny Bolwerk was next with 517, followed by Joan Hawkins' 501 set. "Bernie" Wautlet also spilled a 202 singleton.

Ted Eiting was the class of the Saturday Nite Couples League at Michiels Bowl in Sherwood when he rapped a 593 line.

Helped by Trades Staying Healthy Prime Requisite for Orioles In Bid for AL Pennant

By DICK COUCH

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — "Our problem," said Baltimore's Hank Bauer last month, "is to get out of spring training healthy."

"If we stay sound," added Orioles' superstar Frank Robinson, "I think we're going to win it."

A few days later, the Orioles' plane lost an engine on the way to an exhibition game in Sarasota. Then Jim Palmer's pitching shoulder went lame—and Manager Bauer's suntan began to fade.

When spring training began, it was generally agreed that if the Orioles remained healthy they would be back in the thick of the 1968 American League race after a nightmarish fall. Everything happened to Baltimore in 1967—and none of it was good.

Palmer, Dave McNally and Wally Bunker, who each had pitched a World Series shutout over Los Angeles in 1966, were shelved by sore arms.

Triple Crown winner Robinson suffered a concussion in a case-line collision, sat out a month and played the last two with double vision.

Big Slide

Boog Powell, winner of the AL Comeback of the Year award the previous year, topped from a .287 average, 34 home runs and 109 runs batted in to .234, 13 homers and 55 RBI.

The Orioles crawled home in a sixth place tie with Washington, 15½ games off the pace. But their troubles weren't over. Center fielder Paul Blair, the league's No. 5 hitter, went to Puerto Rico to play winter ball—and broke his ankle.

Bauer, beginning his fifth year as the Orioles' pilot, came to camp with fingers crossed. The three sore-armed pitchers were throwing without pain, Robinson's vision was normal. Powell was determined and Blair was itching to play after bouncing back from an operation.

The Orioles, still young and strengthened during the winter by a multi-player trade with Chicago, could go all the way if Palmer's arm trouble isn't serious—or contagious—and if Powell bounces back to help Frank Robinson and Brooks Robinson carry the offensive load.

Switch at Short

The lineup probably will be the same as last year, with the exception of shortstop, where slick-fielding Mark Belanger takes over for Luis Aparicio. Aparicio was traded to the White Sox, with outfielder Russ Snyder and outfielder John Matias, for infielder Don Buford and pitchers Bruce Howard and Roger Nelson.

Powell will be back at first base, Dave Johnson, .247, at little soul-searching.

second and Brooks Robinson, .269, at third.

Rookies Dave May and Marv Rettermund are pressing for outfield jobs. But Frank Robinson, .311, and Blair, .293, are established in right and center while Curt Blefary, .242, figures to be back in left.

Andy Etchebarren, .215, likely will handle most of the catching.

Baltimore pitchers had many problems in 1967. One of them, according to Bauer, was non-support. "We lost 33 one-run games and a total of 56 by one and two runs," he said.

Help from Trade

Tom Phoebus, 14-9, Jim Hardin, 8-3, and Howard, 3-10 with Chicago, are starting candidates along with Palmer, McNally and Bunker. Pete Richter, 9-16, moves to the bullpen, joining Gene Brabender, Moe Drabowsky, Eddie Watt and Stu Miller. Richter and Brabender are available as starters if some of the other arms don't hold up.

Belanger's glove will help at shortstop but his hitting potential is suspect.

"I don't know how much he'll hit, but that's beside the point," Bauer said. "He's not going to carry the team. If the Robinsons don't hit and Powell and Blefary don't either, we're gone anyway."

If they all hit, Belanger does too and the pitchers stay off the disabled list, the rest of the league might be gone.

Muskies Hire Mikkelsen

Vern Becomes General Manager Of ABA Team

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Vern Mikkelsen said it when he accepted the general managership of the Minnesota Muskies' basketball team Monday, and nobody disputed it.

"It will take a lot of hard work... a lot of promotion. It won't be an easy task," Mikkelsen said of the job before him in winning paying customers for the Muskies, who were every thing but a box office success in their first American Basketball Association season.

President Larry Shields appointed Mikkelsen to replace the resigned Eddie Holman, adding another touch of local flavor designed to win greater acceptance for the Muskies.

Mikkelsen, 39, leaves a successful Minneapolis insurance business to undertake the Muskies' image-building job. He admitted Monday, "I had to do a little soul-searching."

Narum Says He Won't Report To Hawaii '9'

Declares Chisox Didn't Give Him A Fair Chance

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Buster Narum, 27-year-old right-handed pitcher cut from the Chicago White Sox roster, rebelled Monday and said he would not report to a minor league club.

Narum was ticketed for Hawaii of the Pacific Coast League along with second baseman Dick Littleton as the Sox trimmed to the 25-player opening day limit.

Narum said he would refuse to report and asked the Sox to sell or trade him to another major league club.

"They're going to have to do something because I'm not going to the minors," Narum said. "I'll just pack up and go home to New York to await developments."

Only 5 Innings

Narum, acquired by the Sox in a winter deal with Washington, charged that he never had a fair chance to make the White Sox club. He has worked only five innings and has a perfect 0.000 earned run average.

"I don't know what more I could have done," he said. General Manager Ed Short said he tried to make a deal for Narum with other big league clubs but none was interested. Short said the Sox had received major league waivers on Narum.

"Mr Narum can do whatever he wants to do," said Short. "He can go home for all I care."

Two Lawrence University students ranked among the winners at the third annual invitational fencing meet held at Lawrence last Friday night and Saturday morning until 2:30 a.m.

"We probably established some sort of record for fencing into the wee hours of the morning," commented Miss Mary Hennecke, assistant professor of physical education at Lawrence. "The bouts were unusually close and long, especially in the men's competition where there was a 3-way tie which required two complete fence-offs to resolve."

Fred Meyer, a Lawrence student from Appleton, placed second to Greg Nelson of the University of Wisconsin-Kenosha. Third place in the men's foil competition went to Tom Sharkey, University of Wisconsin-Madison. Lawrence's Dave Vaughan was sixth.

Jack Kralick Says He's Through With Baseball
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Jack Kralick, former American League pitcher, says he has filed retirement papers from baseball and is selling insurance for North American Life Assurance Co. of Toronto.

Kralick said, "I am definitely through with baseball and definitely committed to the insurance business."

He once pitched a no-hit, no-run game while with the Minnesota Twins, allowing just one base on balls that cost him a perfect game. It was against Kansas City Aug. 2, 1962.

The next year Kralick was traded to Cleveland in a deal for Jim Perry.

Johnson Due To Get Votes Of Sympathy

Wisconsin Primary Has Become Maze Rather Than Battleground

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — [day that there certainly are people who would be ready to support him," he said.

McCarthy looked beyond Wisconsin, too, in an election eve address to the nation, a televised speech which began with kind words for Johnson.

In a broadcast which cost his campaign treasury $72,000, McCarthy said Johnson was a man committed to peace and had proved it by announcing Sunday night that he would not seek nor accept renomination. He said that erased any possible doubt that there might have been a political purpose in Johnson's decision to de-escalate the war in Vietnam.

"It could very well have been his most direct and positive action in the interest of the United States of America," McCarthy said.

First Troops Head Home From Europe

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — The withdrawal of 35,000 American soldiers and airmen from Europe accelerated today with the departure by plane of the 24th Infantry Division's 3rd Engineer Battalion.

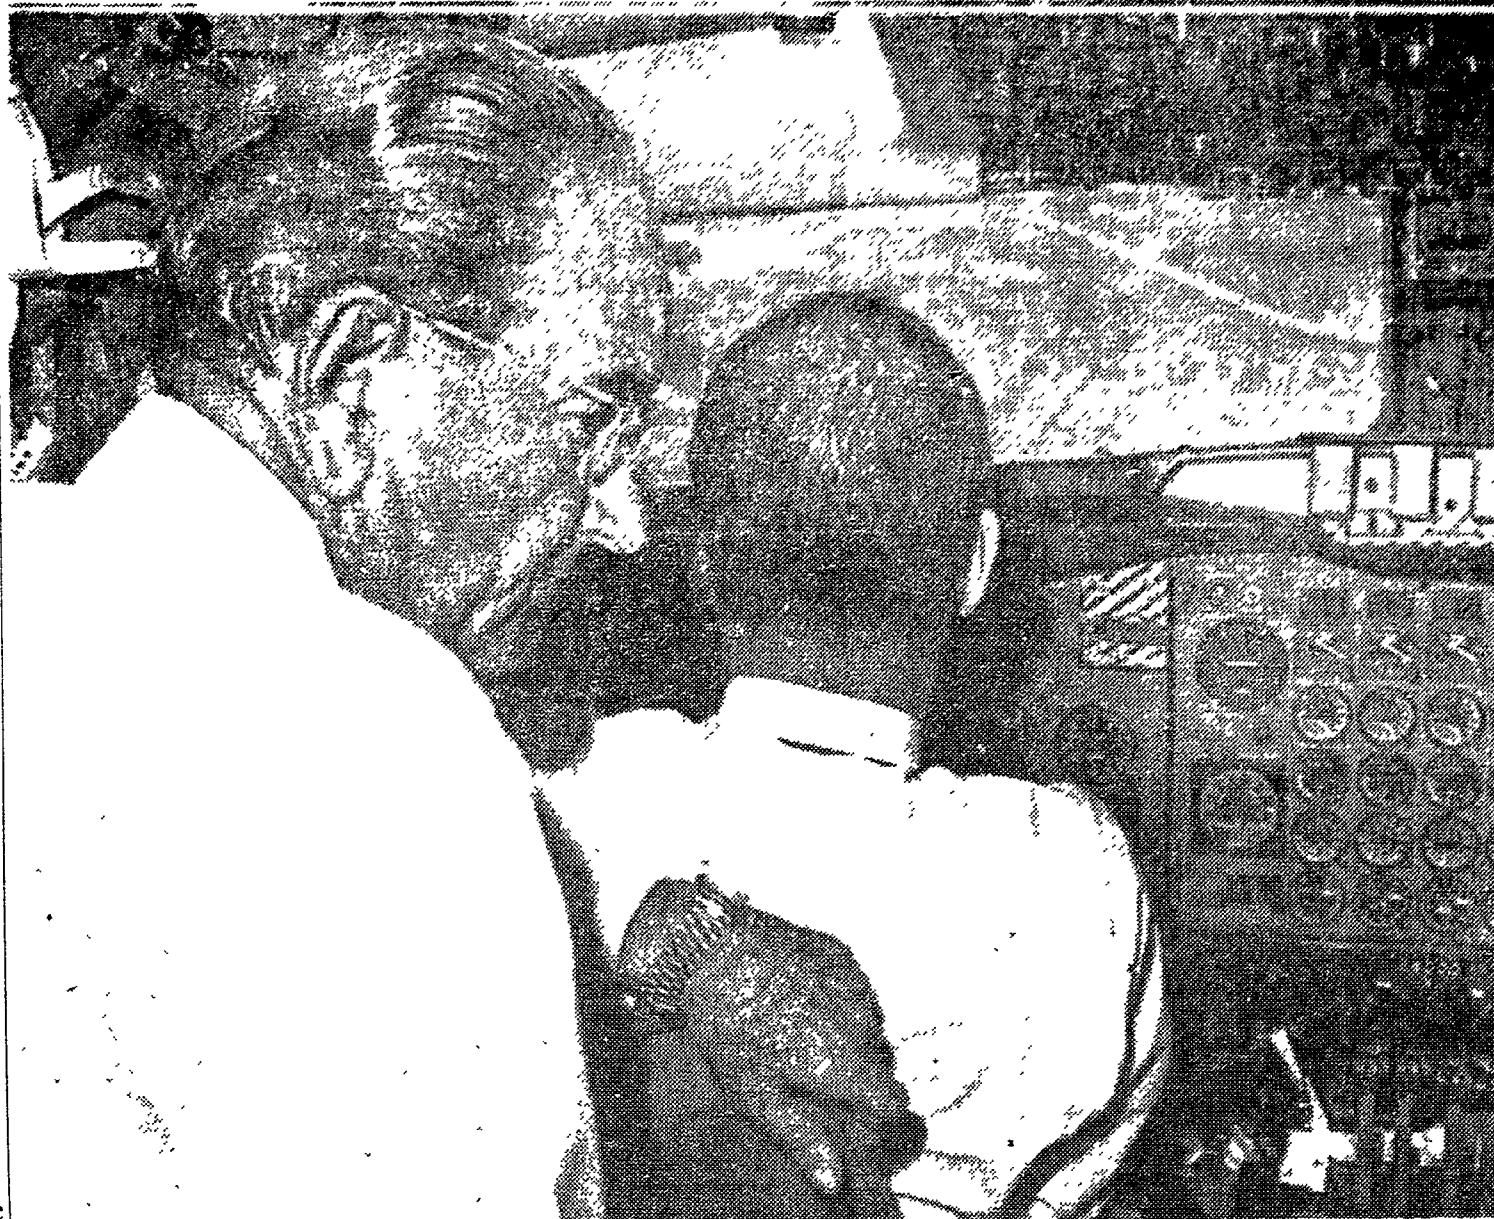

A commercial jetliner took off from Munich with 214 soldiers, wives and children. Three other flights were scheduled today with a total of 327 passengers.

Their first stop in the United States was to be McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey, to unload men whose cars had been shipped in advance to Philadelphia. The rest were to continue on to Forbes Air Force Base in Kansas and then to Ft. Riley, Kan.

Two 24th Division brigades, totaling 10,000 servicemen and 12,000 members of their families, are being shifted to Ft. Riley under the redeployment plan announced last December. The plan is to save about $100 million annually in foreign exchange costs.

The withdrawal was ordered after West Germany informed the United States it could not meet the full foreign exchange offset costs of stationing about 225,000 American soldiers and 60,000 airmen in Germany.

Unconditional Bombing Halt Still Is Sought

Pentagon Fears Enemy Supplies Will Hurt U. S.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The North Vietnamese government appeared today to be getting ready to reject President Johnson's peace overture, but hope was expressed in at least two foreign capitals.

Among developments related to Johnson's announcement Sunday that he was calling an immediate halt to most bombings in North Vietnam:

Swedish radio in Stockholm said its correspondent in Prague, Czechoslovakia, understood the North Vietnamese ambassador there to say he welcomed President Johnson's speech and that it "could open the way to peace."

Officials in Europe familiar with Vietnamese affairs predicted Hanoi would reject peace talks on the ground that parts of North Vietnam still were being bombed. However, the North Vietnamese delegation in Paris went so far as to relay a copy of Johnson's speech to Hanoi.

The North Vietnamese Army newspaper in Hanoi said today Johnson is trying to mislead public opinion with his bombing halt, Tass news agency reported from Moscow.

Air Force officials in Washington feared that a bombing halt of one month would allow the North Vietnamese to rush 100,000 tons of war supplies into the South. Allies now must intercept the new flow of goods ticketed for enemy troops south of the demilitarized zone, the officials said.

The Soviet ambassador to Britain turned a cold shoulder to a British overture for peace talks based on the bombing cutback.

Seeking a resumption of the Geneva conference on Vietnam, of which the Soviet Union and Britain are co-chairmen, British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart met for 45 minutes Monday night with Ambassador Mikhail Smirnovsky and told him he was ready to fly to Moscow to see Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

'Not Encouraged'

"Mr. Smirnovsky restated some of the familiar Russian and North Vietnamese positions so you could not say I was encouraged," Stewart said in a television interview afterward.

But he added: "This move will not have been wasted. It will prove in time to be part of the process that in the end will get peace."

Smirnovsky told newsmen Johnson's limitation of the bombing of North Vietnam was "incomplete" and "not unconditional," as the North Vietnamese had demanded.

The delay in official reaction from Moscow and Hanoi was not unusual, but various unofficial comments indicated Moscow and Hanoi would reject Johnson's overture for peace negotiations.

In Cairo, a member of a visiting Viet Cong delegation said the President's speech indicated "the Americans mean no peace."

Humphrey to Tell Plans 'Later on'

WASHINGTON (AP) Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, who has not said whether he will seek the presidency, met with President Johnson today for the first time since Johnson announced he does not want a second term.

Humphrey, who arrived here late Monday from a diplomatic mission to Mexico City, told a crowd of supporters meeting his plane he will say "later on" whether he will be a candidate.

But in Philadelphia, Mayor James H. J. Tate told newsmen Monday a Humphrey aide indicated to him the vice president will run for president.

Humphrey joined Johnson at a White House breakfast attended by the Democratic congressional leadership.

Johnson also has on tap a meeting with Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, who already is contending for the Democratic nomination, with no date announced. Kennedy requested the meeting to discuss national unity following Johnson's startling announcement Sunday night that he won't seek or accept renomination.

Johnson told newsmen Monday he would grant Kennedy's request.

McCarthy Efforts

Johnson's announced exit prompted Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, another Democratic contender, to make last-minute efforts to counter a potential sympathy vote for the President in today's Wisconsin primary.

Only the President and McCarthy are listed on the Democratic ballot there and private polls taken before Johnson's announcement showed McCarthy way ahead.

In a nationally broadcast speech on primary eve McCarthy said Johnson's decision not to run again "deserves, I think, the approval, the honor and the respect of every citizen of the United States."

Humphrey, who was on a diplomatic mission in Mexico when Johnson made his decision public, stepped from a plane into the chilly Washington air late Monday night and got a warm welcome from about 500 persons, many of them bearing placards urging him to run.

"I will meet with President Johnson tomorrow and I shall be talking to you later on," Humphrey told them.

Freeman Silent

Standing behind him as he read his statement was Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, a former three-term governor of Minnesota who was Humphrey's protegee early in their careers.

Freeman made no comment about whether he would back a Humphrey bid. Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., who also was in the crowd, said he would support such a bid.

A Humphrey bid apparently would also attract support among Democratic leaders and labor chiefs.

An Associated Press poll showed that some Democratic national committeemen and governors would look toward Humphrey although a large percentage of them expressed hope Johnson would change his mind and a few mentioned a draft-Johnson attempt.

Humphrey's name came up repeatedly in a spot check of the Democratic party's labor wing in Washington.

One union president—Thomas L. Gleason of the International Longshoremen's Association—said Humphrey was a working liberal "long before any of these guys with the long hair stood up."

Wit, Humor in Campaign

McCarthy vs. Stevenson

By JACK BELL

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — The benevolent spirit of the late Adlai E. Stevenson must be hovering delightedly over the campaigning of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy.

Like Stevenson, whom he admired greatly, McCarthy is imparting a freshness of wit and good humor to the ordinarily dull grind of grubbing for votes.

There is one difference. Stevenson, twice his party's presidential nominee, loathed primaries. He complained that all of the chores of making set speeches, ploughing through crowds grasping every hand in sight and attending cocktail parties for local political bigwigs didn't give a man time to think.

McCarthy, on the other hand, seems to take all of this traditional campaigning in stride. He never had so much national attention before and he is basking and expanding in it.

Secret Amusement

But there is nearly always on McCarthy's countenance the same wry smile of secret amusement that Stevenson used to wear. The faintly arched eyebrow hints at the inward wonderment that a man should be required to go through all the campaign antics to make himself a contender for the world's highest elective office.

If it had been left to Stevenson—and if it were left to McCarthy—there would be calm, serious discussion of the issues. And cut out the monkeyshines.

Perhaps he doesn't do it as well as Stevenson, who was an

Little Love

Although it usually is assumed there is little brotherly love between Johnson and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York, who covets his job, even mention of Kennedy's name failed to draw sparks.

Johnson, when asked if he for him," he said.

would honor the senator's request for an early face-to-face meeting, simply replied, "Surely."

When a reporter then inquired if the President had any particular meeting time in mind, Johnson appeared the soul of magnanimity and accommodation.

"Whenever it is convenient

Observers have noted in the past that Johnson has seemed to find new zest for life—and greater equanimity—after resolving, to his satisfaction, major problems. That would seem to be the case now.

He has "crossed that bridge"—a phrase he repeatedly used to describe his possible 1968 candidacy—and he gives every

Thieu Says U.S. Pullout of Troops Would be 'Desertion'

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu said today his government could agree to a gradual withdrawal of U.S. troops beginning by the end of this year but he made clear he would hate to see them go.

In his first comments on President Johnson's de-escalation speech Sunday night Thieu told a news conference that only more troops can hasten the end of the war. He also said if the United States withdraws from Vietnam "they will be avoiding their responsibility and deserting the free world."

But when asked by what date he thought the United States could begin to withdraw Thieu replied: "If the United States requests a withdrawal of its troops we can agree to a gradual withdrawal beginning by the end of 1968. Of course we will never ask the United States to go home but if the U.S. government wants it, we can begin to good will."

He said if there is no satisfactory response from Hanoi his government will not delay its general mobilization order: "We South Vietnamese armed forces will do it now."

Like President Johnson in his announcement of the bombing curtailment, Thieu set no deadline for Hanoi's response. But the South Vietnamese leader said: "It is a matter of weeks, not a matter of months."

Thieu made these other points: —His government will never agree to a coalition government with the Viet Cong. The Viet Cong can participate in peace negotiations, but only as part of the North Vietnamese delegation. Thieu and Ky have insisted on both points repeatedly.

—He does not think President Johnson's speech Sunday was the first step in a face-saving American withdrawal from Vietnam. "I have no suspicion of that because of the decisive stand of the United States ... concerning peace in all of Southeast Asia," Thieu said.

—U.S. pressure could never force a coalition government including the Viet Cong on South Vietnam. "This is a Vietnamese war," Thieu said. "The American government and policies can change but the ideals and policies of the government of Vietnam will never change ... We will not accept any policy that runs against the Vietnamese people."

'Highest Interests'

—Differences between Thieu and Vice President Ky are over-emphasized. "We may differ on individual points, but we are working together for the highest interests of Vietnam," Thieu said. He appealed to the newsmen not to look "with a microscope for small differences which are sometimes imaginary between the vice president and myself."

Thieu added that he had asked Ky to take on the supervision of a project to organize civilians into armed self-defense units. As the president spoke, Ky sat at his right, grim-faced and with his eyes nearly closed.

2-Week Moratorium

Nixon Declares Halt in War Policy Criticism During LBJ Peace Try

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon says he favors a two-to-three week moratorium on criticism of President Johnson's Vietnam policy "while we explore this avenue for peace."

The leading contender for the Republican presidential nomination said Monday he would hold off making "the comprehensive statement on Vietnam which I had planned for this week."

"Ready to Deliver"

But he added the statement was "all prepared and will be ready to deliver if the bombing pause fails to produce meaningful negotiations and a reduction of the fighting. I hope this is a speech that is never delivered."

Nixon praised the President for his peace efforts but emphasized his view that "a bombing halt by itself would not be a step toward peace."

$55,000 Sought For Deaths in Highway Crash

Appleton Man Sues For Wife, Children Killed on U. S. 10

WAUPACA — Robert W. Littlefield, Appleton, whose wife and two children were killed in a car-truck crash Oct. 28, 1967, on U.S. 10 south of Weyauwega, is seeking a total of $55,000 for the deaths from William E. Hrebik, route 3, Waupaca, and the Hartford Accident and Indemnity Insurance Co., according to a civil suit filed Monday with Waupaca County Clerk of Courts Orin Stevenson.

As a special administrator for his wife's estate, Littlefield is seeking $5,000 for the injuries she suffered. As an individual he is seeking $26,000 for the death of his wife and $20,000 for the loss of his two children, a son, LaWayne, 7, and a daughter, Tami, 6. The suit also asks $2,000 for the couple's infant daughter Melissa who was left motherless plus $2,000 for the loss of the car Mrs. Littlefield was driving at the time of the accident.

Truck Stops

The crash occurred when the truck driven by Hrebik, who was traveling south, crossed the highway and stopped with the rear portion of the truck projecting onto the highway. The car driven by Mrs. Littlefield, who was traveling north, struck the right rear corner of the truck. All three victims were killed instantly in the crash.

In addition to the $55,000, Littlefield is also asking that Hrebik and the insurance company pay all court costs and attorney fees.

County Plans 4-H Festival At Manawa Clubs to Compete In Folk Dancing; Music Selections

WAUPACA — The county 4-H Music and Folk Dance Festival will be at 8 p.m. April 9, at Manawa High School. Clubs may enter musical selections in either vocal, instrumental, square dance or novelty ensemble.

The intent of the program is to provide opportunities for youth to learn to work together by using their musical talents in a wholesome and creative way, according to Phil Jeske, county 4-H agent. Besides the musical benefits, performing in an ensemble gives members experience in poise, posture and stage presence before an audience, added Jeske.

Chilton Man Is Found Guilty of Traffic Offense

WAUPACA — Clarence Kopf, 36, route 1, Chilton, was found guilty of operating a truck over the centerline Friday by a six-man jury in Waupaca Municipal Justice Court.

Justice George Whalen fined Kopf $60 and ordered him to pay court costs of $98.50 which included the costs of the jury and witnesses.

Kopf was arrested by county police after a sideswipe accident with a pickup truck near Northport on State 54 Feb. 20. At the time of the mishap Kopf, was driving a semi-trailer truck, west while the pickup truck driven by Mrs. Florence E. Lafler, Wisconsin Rapids was traveling east.

Kopf pleaded innocent to the charge Feb. 24 and requested a jury trial.

Not Sure Meters Are Answer

Supervisor Waivers on His Courthouse Parking Plan

"Second thoughts" on the proposal to have parking meters installed around the Outagamie County courthouse were expressed Monday morning by Supv. Russell DeLaHunt, Kaukauna.

DeLaHunt, who made the proposal at a finance committee meeting a week ago, told the executive committee Monday he now thought his proposal may have been "too drastic" and suggested that a reduction in the time limit for parking from the present four-hour zones may be a better solution.

However, Supv. Marvin Babbitt, Seymour, said he felt meters were the best solution to the parking problem around the courthouse. "If this doesn't work, then we will have to buy land for parking," he said.

DeLaHunt then suggested that Babbitt and Executive Secretary Al Woehler contact the City of Appleton to get more information on meter installation and include that information on a resolution to be acted upon by the county board April 16.

In financial matters, the executive committee recommended increasing the salary of the county 4-H Club agent $200 per year; recommended transfer of $1,000 to the district attorney's budget to increase that salary to $12,000 in compliance with the new state law, and recommended hiring a second maker at a salary of $470 per month.

A request from the airport committee for a new full-time maintenance man at the airport was referred to the personnel subcommittee.

Woehler and County Board Chairman Sylvester Esler were instructed to contact neighboring counties on procedures used in conducting county board meetings. Supv. Ralph Schwartz, Appleton, had requested at the last board meeting that a study be made for use of a formal agenda at board meetings.

Esler also appointed DeLaHunt, Babbitt and Joseph DeBruin to begin preliminary planning for the Wisconsin County Boards Association convention to be held in Appleton Sept. 23-25.

Housing Authority Told Its Work Is Complex

Facilities for County's Elderly Residents Are 2 or 3 Years in Future, Expert Says

The newly created Outagamie County Housing Authority learned Monday that it has a long way to go before it will be in a position to consider building low-rent housing for the elderly.

John Lindoerfer, housing consultant, division on aging, State Department of Health and Social Services, outlined some of the basic requirements for a housing authority to the group and indicated that it normally takes between two and three years before a project can be completed.

Lindoerfer said one of the first steps is to conduct a survey of the county to determine the need for low-rent housing and then to draw up a program for solving the problem.

This workable program would have to be approved by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

On the question of finances, Lindoerfer said $500 would be more than sufficient to operate the authority until such time a project was approved. Once a project receives approval, he said, no further county financing is necessary.

County board confirmation is still needed for the appointments to the authority. County board chairman Sylvester Esler has named Supvs. Henry Breitling and Sylvester Lenz, county executive secretary Al Woehler, Seymour Mayor Ben Truymann and Milan Sousek, manager, Hortonville Branch, Appleton State Bank.

Milwaukeean Denies Rape

Cycle Gang Member Charged After Party Near Marion

WAUPACA — Joseph M. Bisenius, 20, Milwaukee, charged with raping a Milwaukee woman during a weekend drinking party Feb. 3 at an abandoned rural Marion cheese factory entered a plea of innocent to the charge and filed an affidavit of prejudice against County Judge Wendell McHenry, Monday, when he appeared in Waupaca County Court.

Bisenius is one of two men charged with the rape of the 25-year-old woman. The second man, Charles A. Johansen, 27, appeared in County Court for a preliminary hearing. Both men are free on bond.

At a preliminary hearing March 3, Bisenius was bound over to County Court for trial but had not entered a plea to the charge until Monday. Following his arrest, Bisenius declared himself indigent and Waupaca attorney Laurie Anderson was appointed his counsel. However on Monday Bisenius was represented in court by a Milwaukee attorney.

A trial date will not be set until a new judge has been named by the state court administrator.

Five Milwaukee men were arrested following the incident at the cheese factory. One man who shot the woman in the shoulder following the alleged rape was sentenced to prison after pleading guilty to a charge of injury by conduct regardless of human life, and three others were fined for disorderly conduct.

Tipsy Driver Fined $100

Clintonville Man Loses Driving Privilege One Year

WAUPACA — Raymond A. Gough, 53, route 2, Clintonville, pleaded guilty to driving while under the influence of intoxicants and was fined $150 and costs when he appeared Monday in Municipal Justice Court.

Gough was arrested about 2 a.m., Sunday, by county police after he ran his car into the ditch on State 76 near Bear Creek Corners.

A breathalyzer test showed Gough tested .20. A reading of .15 is considered evidence of intoxication.

Justice George Whalen also revoked Gough's driver's license for one year.

Expand Medical School

Lorge Proposes Steps to Relieve Doctor Shortage

NEW LONDON — The possibility of the state building a new medical school in the Green Bay area or in some other state city having necessary hospital facilities was suggested by State Sen. Gerald B. Lorge, R-Bear Creek, in a speech before the New London Rotary Club Monday.

Lorge expressed alarm that Wisconsin physician manpower is only 119 per 100,000 population, compared to the national average of 143 and the Midwest ratio of 136.

He said that he found the findings of the Task Force on Medical Education alarming enough to favor expansion of the University of Wisconsin Medical School at Madison to accommodate 160 incoming students rather than the present 104, and to encourage Marquette University to increase its first year enrollment from 107 to 160.

In proposing the construction of a new medical school elsewhere in the state, he said that the recommendation to build a new medical school on the Milwaukee campus should be carefully considered and that the impact of such a facility on the Marquette medical school should be evaluated.

He declared that the present and future level of resources for health and care of Wisconsin citizens is a serious matter.

Lorge also said that he felt it possible for the state to adopt another "no tax increase" budget, in spite of greater demands for increased school aids caused by increases in teacher salaries and larger enrollments. He gave increased economic growth and resulting increased revenues as the reason for his position.

He said the Legislature should make every effort to frame a budget for 1968-70 on current revenues before giving any thought to new taxes.

Lorge was the guest speaker of program chairman Alex Luff.

Bonding Vote To be Aired by School Board

Special Session Called Tonight by New London District

NEW LONDON — A special April board of education meeting will be held at 8 p.m. today because of the school bonding election.

Today's meeting will replace the regular board meeting usually held the second Monday of each month. If the referendum on the elementary school is approved the board will authorize the architectural firm to prepare final specifications and schedule bidding of the job.

The guidance department's request for a department head, extending the work year into the summer and an additional part-time worker will be reviewed.

Substitute teacher salaries will be reviewed. Principals have been experiencing a difficult time in hiring substitutes at the current rate of pay.

In other business the board will get a report on the progress of the 1968-1969 budget and make a preliminary study on non-instructional salaries.

$600 Taken In Break-in At Waupaca

WAUPACA — A total of $600 in cash was taken during a break-in at Simpsons Restaurant between 1 a.m. and 7 a.m., Monday, according to city police.

Entry to the restaurant, at 22 S. Main St., was discovered by an employee when he reported to work at 7 a.m. Police said there was no forcible entry, however, the cash drawer was forced open.

Police are continuing their investigation.

Failure to Pay Motel Bill Leads to $25 Fine

A rural Green Bay man who checked into a Town of Grand Chute motel under a wrong name and left without paying his bill, was fined $25 and costs in Outagamie County Court Monday after he was found guilty of absconding.

G. G. Tamm, route 3, was charged following investigation by Outagamie County authorities, who said he checked into the El Kay Motel under an assumed name Jan. 13 and left without paying a $12.36 bill. He pleaded would perform a survey without any cost to the city.

Glass Fab Starts Two More Plant Additions

New London Firm's Projects Scheduled for Completion by May 1; Cost Set at $15,000

NEW LONDON — Glass Fab, Inc., which has not yet begun full production in a new addition to its industrial plant, began two more building additions Monday.

Paul F. Kamke, president, said the two new additions were in line with past improvements to keep all phases of plant operation as efficient as possible. Estimated cost is $15,000.

A 24 by 50 foot addition is being constructed on the north side of the original plant building and a 20 by 24 addition to the flammable storage building is under way.

NEW LONDON — A comprehensive development plan for the downtown business area will be drawn up by Max E. Anderson & Associates, Madison, if the planning commission recommendations is accepted Wednesday by the city council.

Seven businessmen appeared before the commission Monday and recommended that the Madison planning firm be retained to do the study and plan for development of the main business area — one of several areas found to be overlooked in a comprehensive city plan.

W. A. Bender, spokesman for the businessmen, said, "We are here in regard to a downtown development plan which has been under study by this group for more than a year. During this time we have met with several planners and recommend that Max Anderson be hired to do it."

"A master plan will give us direction on traffic, parking, pedestrian control, zoning and beautification. It will give us something tied together which we don't now have and protect the future of the business area," Bender said.

Other businessmen at the session were David Smith, Max Bassewitz, Marlin Fuerst, Harold Rieckmann, Pete Laux and Harvey Romberg.

It was recommended by the businessmen's group that development of the river frontage in the area be included in the plan study.

The planning commission further stipulated that the plan by the Madison firm meet with State Department of Resource Development approval and qualify for any federal aid programs available for urban renewal or downtown and river improvements.

Cost of Study There are no plans to seek federal or state aid in paying for the plan as the city has set aside $7,000 for the study. This will cover the entire cost according to figures given by Anderson.

In other action Monday the commission went on record as favoring a new airport site survey by the state aeronautics board and the formation of a city council committee to work in conjunction with the citizen's advisory committee.

The citizen's advisory committee and representatives of New London Aviation, Inc., made a preliminary investigation and found that the state would perform a survey without any cost to the city.

retirement? "I have been right in here every day," Rex said, as he raised the heavy hammer to crash it down on a steel bar just removed from the forge.

The types of items Rex produces are almost as newsworthy as the 81-year-old blacksmith. Horse eveners — a conglomeration of nuts, bolts, steel and wood — are one of the most sought after products, although this particular day he had a rush order for a set of skidding tongs.

Horse eveners aren't used for evening up the height of a horse as might be implied, but are attached to a heavy piece of equipment or (in most present day uses) to a stone boat for a pulling contest.

A heavy steel hook is attached to the equipment to be pulled while the remainder of the "evener" has a set of whiffletree hooks to which the tugs of the horses harnesses are attached.

At this time there are about 38 sets of eveners produced by Rex being used.

Rex said it takes about 15 hours to turn out one complete set of horse eveners. "I make all but one part of the evener," he said.

The skidding tongs for logs are made from car axles he purchases at a wrecking yard. "I've sold quite a few sets."

Of hoof knives he says, "I had an awful mess of them here... couldn't tell you how many I made. Make them out of old blades from a carpenter's plane — genuine steel. I melt the aluminum myself and make the handles."

"I made 102 sets of log loading pups (an instrument of cable) and hooks for loading logs onto a train car right here on this anvil," Rex said.

Leaning back onto his wire frame stool and turning the crank to fan the smoldering coals in his forge to a bright cherry red Rex said, "Wish I was a younger man and knew what I know now."

What has he done since his retirement?

He retired in 1954 after long years of hard work that began in the Town of Dale where he was born June 19, 1886, and took him to such distant places as California.

He no longer has the pressures of going to work every day or working for someone else. Now he works at his trade when he wants to in the smithy which occupies a corner of his garage.

His zeal for work indicates he enjoyed every minute of his employment as a farm hand, blacksmith for the old Hatten Lumber Company, work on the Northwestern railroad and the years at the "Plywood."

The last 32 years of his working life were spent in New London. "I worked for Hatten Lumber 18½ years. When they shut down I went to work at the 'Plywood' (New London terminology for Curtis Companies, Inc.)," Rex said.

He called Hatten the best man he ever worked for. Rex spent the Depression years in Hatten's employ and also the fruitful years immediately prior to WW II.

Waupaca Nurse Aligns TB Test Program Plans

WAUPACA — A countywide tuberculin skin testing program will be offered to Waupaca County children in the first and ninth grades at no charge, according to Mrs. Duwayne Tanner, Waupaca County nurse. The program is being offered with cooperation of the Waupaca County Medical Society. Letters have been sent home with every child in the two grades requesting that the pupils return the letter even if the parents do not wish their child to have the test. The child must have the signed letter when he appears for the test.

Skin Test

The doctor or nurse can tell by the appearance of the skin in 48 to 72 hours after the test whether or not the child has been infected with the germ of tuberculosis.

If the test is negative, it means that there are probably no live tuberculosis germs in the body. The test should be repeated periodically, the county nurse said.

If the test is positive, the child is a reactor. This means that at some time the person has been exposed to tuberculosis.

X-Ray Follow-Up

For reactors an x-ray will be needed to determine if treatment is needed.

The clinic dates and location, when the tests will be given and read are as follows:

Iola-Scandinavia district, testing, April 8, reading April 10; Marion district, testing April 8, reading April 10; St. Paul Lutheran school, testing April 16, reading April 18; Weyauwega district, testing April 17, reading April 19; St. Peter Lutheran school, testing April 17, reading April 19; Waupaca district, first grade, testing April 22, and reading April 24, ninth grade, testing April 24, and reading April 26; Manawa District, testing April 29 and reading May 1.

Parnell Says Plans For Court 'Not New'

Believes Change to Full-Time Is Duty of Judicial Council

Circuit Judge A. W. Parnell heavy workload in the county of Appleton said Monday that while a proposal to create a full-time Circuit Court in Outagamie County might warrant consideration, it should best be left in the hands of the Judicial Council of the state.

Gustave J. Keller, who retired last week as judge of Outagamie County Court Branch 2, proposed the full-time Circuit Court here to help relieve the

Prison Inmate Charged in Coin Robbery

Warrant Issued After Identification By Ervin Wanserski

MENASHA—A complaint has been filed charging a man currently imprisoned in Illinois with armed robbery in the $50,000 March 19, 1967, holdup of coin dealer Ervin Wanserski, Dist. Atty. Thomas Fink announced Monday.

Fink said the complaint has been signed last Thursday by Police Chief Lester Clark but had been kept secret until authorities could trace the suspect, identified as Joseph J. Neary, 28, currently an inmate at Joliet State Prison.

Fink said Neary has been identified by Wanserski as one of three armed men who forced him to load some two tons of coins into containers on Palm Sunday night, 1967, while the trio held the dealer and his family at gun point.

The Robbers then loaded the coins into a vehicle parked in the garage at the rear of Wanserski's Grocery Store on Sixth Street and fled.

Extradition Problem

Neary is serving a one to four-year sentence on charges not immediately known here. Fink said local authorities are aiming for a trial as soon as possible, but were uncertain about possible complications in extraditing a man while he is serving a term in a state prison in another state.

Neary is the third person to be charged in the robbery. Previously, Donald R. Peters, 916 Ridge Lane, Appleton, was convicted of transporting some of the stolen coins across state lines into Illinois. Peters is serving a 2½-year sentence in a federal prison in Minnesota.

More recently, Lawrence V. Miller, 23, Oshkosh, pleaded guilty to charges of aiding and abetting and conspiracy in the robbery. He is awaiting sentencing, pending the outcome of a pre-sentence investigation that is to include a lie detector test of his denial that he was one of the three armed men inside the Wanserski Grocery Store during the robbery.

Favored Proposal

County Judges Urban P. Van Susteren and Raymond Dohr indicated last week that they favored the proposal, but Parnell was out of town and could not be reached for comment.

He said Monday that Keller's proposal is nothing new, adding that a survey concerning judicial circuits was started some time ago by the Judicial Council, which consists of representatives of the state Senate, Assembly, and judiciary.

No specific recommendation has been made by the council concerning the 10th Judicial Circuit which includes Outagamie, Shawano, Langlade, and Menominee Counties, Parnell said. Past discussion, he said, has included combining Outagamie and Waupaca Counties under one circuit.

Up to Council

Parnell, who emphasized that he did not want to get into an argument over the re-circuiting issue, said that the matter belongs in the hands of the Judicial Council.

Parnell, who also serves the other three counties in the 10th Judicial Circuit, noted that he spends more time in Outagamie County than in any of the other three. He said that his court has been heavily loaded, and explained that for some time he has been hearing criminal cases that were bound over to Circuit Court from County Court Branch 2.

"I'm doing the job I was appointed to do," Parnell said.

Sister Mary George To Speak to Calumet Group for Retarded

CHILTON — Sister Mary George, of St. Coletta School in Jefferson, will speak at the Calumet County Association for Retarded Children April meeting.

The Chilton High mixed chorus will present several numbers while the Stockbridge senior class will usher and serve refreshments at the meeting.

Mrs. Theodore Jordan, Forest Junction, chairman, said this meeting, open to the public, will increase understanding of county problems in mental retardation.

Principal 1 of 3 Xavier Teachers Reassigned

Diminishing Ranks of Christian Brothers Reason for Shift

A shortage of members in the Order of Christian Brothers has caused the officials of the Winona Province to withdraw three of the 11 brothers now teaching at Xavier High School, at the end of this school year.

The announcement came from Brother H. Richard, principal, who also has been reassigned as director of student brothers for the Winona, Minn., province of the order.

He will be succeeded as principal by Brother Paul Ostendorf, FSC, presently serving as principal in Fargo, N.D.

Also leaving will be Brother Stephen, assistant principal in charge of the boy's department. Other transfers will leave the Xavier faculty with three fewer brothers. New assignments have not been announced, as yet.

Consolidate Efforts

Reason given for the withdrawal was to allow the order to consolidate its efforts throughout the province.

"As with almost all communities of religious, our order faces the problem of diminishing numbers, due to fewer recruits and an increasing number leaving the religious life," Brother Richard said.

"The superiors feel that re-trenchment now is absolutely necessary in order to maintain morale among their numbers.

More brothers will receive specialized training. Work opportunities in apostolates other than education will be made avail-

Private School Program

350 Students Enroll For Driver Training

Some 350 private school students are attending Appleton school district's drivers training night classes, which started last week, but 20 to 25 students were turned away for lack of enough driver trainers.

However, William Pickett, director of physical education, health and drivers training, indicated he is planning another classroom course to start July 10. This three-week class will include 15 two-hour sessions.

Students are required under the new state law to pass accredited drivers education programs, including classroom and behind-the-wheel experience, to qualify for a Wisconsin drivers license.

Private Students

This summer classroom session will accommodate private school students who did not get in the spring night classes, Pickett said. He originally had estimated 300 for the night sessions.

Three summer sessions will be conducted for the behind-the-wheel portion, which during the first summer, will be on Appleton's streets. Pickett said he hoped to have a driving range for 1969.

Pickett had estimated using 16 to 18 cars but said Monday 20 to 22 cars will be needed to accommodate students. He said the original 900 estimated for the summer program could be 1,200.

The program is expected to cost $32,000 the first year, Pickett estimated. Students will be charged a $5 fee to pay for teaching materials.
